AMENDMENTS WIN BY LANDSLIDE BALLOT; REPEAL VOTE OUTCOME REMAINS IN DOUBT

'WORK OR JAIL' EDICT IS ISSUED RELIEF LABORERS

Bibb County Sheriff, Incensed at Farm Plight, Calls on Georgia Officers to Join Him in Drive to Ease Situation.

VAGRANCY CHARGE HELD AS THREAT

Macon Judge Backs Hicks and Promises 12-Month Gang Sentence for Persons Refusing Job Offers

MACON, Ga., June 8.—(AP)—Bibb County Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr. today called on Georgia peace officers to join him in a drive to relieve farmers "whose crops stand untended for want of labor."

The plea was made in a statement to reporters in which the sheriff announced: "Starting tomorrow my force is going to sweep the county and arrest any person who refuses to accept employment."

"Will Fill Jail." The sheriff said "we will fill the jail" if necessary to relieve the Bibb county "labor troubles."

Backing Sheriff Hicks was City Court Judge Earl W. Butler, who said persons on relief who are able to work and refuse private employment are vagrants and subject to a 12-month chain gang sentence. "If anyone goes to the relief rolls to get labor and offers persons on relief work and they refuse it, I will obtain warrants for such persons and Judge Butler will see to it that they go to the chain gang for 12 months," Sheriff Hicks said.

The statement by Hicks today was the first announcement of intended criminal action in Georgia's month-long controversy over relief labor.

Previously, Superior Court Judge W. M. Harper, of the Superior Court (Americus) court, and Paul S. Etheridge, of the Fulton court, had urged indictment as vagrants of persons on relief who refused private employment.

Labor Shortage. The controversy started with an announcement by D. L. Floyd, chief statistician of the Georgia Crop Reporting Service, that there were only 86 laborers available for every 100 farm jobs.

Last week, the Works Progress Administration announced plans for releasing 3,500 workers by June 15. Accompanying the announcement was a statement by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, WPA administrator.

"We are in sympathy with farmers who need labor and are willing to pay the prevailing rates," Sheriff Hicks emphasized here.

Russell Introduces Bill For Farm Tax Refund

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(UP)—Senator Richard B. Russell, Democrat, Georgia, introduced in the senate today a bill to refund taxes collected under the Bankhead cotton act of 1934, the Kerr tobacco act, and the potato act of 1935.

The measure is patterned after the measure refunding processing taxes collected under the invalidated Agricultural Adjustment Administration and would allow refunds only to those who did not "shift" the burden of the tax.

"It is designed to insure the refunding of the taxes to the persons who actually bore the burden of the payment of the tax," Russell said.

Under the terms of the proposal, refunds will be made only to those who make claim for the return after enactment of the bill and prior to July 1, 1938.

Christian Ideals Wrecked, Churchman Accuses Hitler

'I Have Waited Four Years Before Passing Judgment,' Federal Council Leader Writes Fuehrer; 'You Have Violated Every Promise Made in 1933.'

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary emeritus of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, advised Chancellor Adolf Hitler in a letter made public here tonight that "whatever you may have done for the economic life of Germany, you have wrecked its Christian ideals."

Dr. MacFarland, who made a study of the religious situation in Germany four years ago with the approval of the Third Reich, emphasized his letter was written in a personal capacity, as well as in a spirit of friendliness.

He recalled that the Reichsfuehrer on January 30, 1933, "begged to be given four years' time before people should judge" "I have waited those four years," he said, "and what is the judgment? . . .

"You are isolating Germany from the rest of humanity, while, by persecution and exile, you are contributing to other people many of Germany's finest minds and spirits."

Dr. MacFarland continued: "At the conclusion of my study, I can only say that you have, by consenting or approving, permitted the desecration of ideals of honor, integrity, truth and humanity associated with the Germany of my student days; that you are forfeiting the respect of the civilized world and that you are leading your adopted nation to an abyss, for you cannot build an enduring nation upon force and hate."

Dr. MacFarland, who since his

HUNDREDS KILLED IN REBEL PUSHES

Franco's Planes, Warships, Siege Guns Bomb Enemy on Six Fronts.

HENDAYE, France.—Spanish Frontiers, June 8.—(UP)—General Francisco Franco's Rebel bombing planes, warships and siege guns today killed hundreds of civilians on a half dozen fronts in one of the most terrifying chapters of Spain's 11-month-old civil war.

In Madrid alone 120 persons, including women and children, were reported killed and 200 were wounded when Rebel guns in the Guadarrama hills poured 250 calibre shells into the Puerta Del Sol, piling the streets with wreckage.

Franco's Rebel fleet in the Bay of Biscay joined with black-winged bombers in a bombardment of besieged Bilbao on the northern front, killing scores.

Sixty insurgent war planes virtually wiped out the town of Galdacano, important Basque defense point five miles east of Bilbao, forcing the Loyalists to abandon it.

In the south, on the Granada front, heavy aerial bombardments were reported.

Three insurgent planes, appearing from the direction of the Balearic Islands, bombarded Valencia, provisional Loyalist capital on the eastern Mediterranean coast, narrowly missing the British steamship King Neptune.

Two Rebel warships, believed to have been the Baleares and Canarias, appeared off the east coast city of Palamos and bombarded it for a half hour with 63 high-powered shells.

There were no victims of the Palamos bombardment.

The Rebel bombardment of Madrid heralded the opening of the eighth month of the siege.

Amelia Tunes Up for African Hop; Khartoum Take Off Planned Today

DAKAR, French Senegal, June 8.—(AP)—Blonde Amelia Earhart, whose twin-motored monoplane today for a hop across Africa as the next leg on her "just for fun" flight around the world.

The American flier, who yesterday flew the South Atlantic from Natal, Brazil to St. Louis, Senegal, made leisurely plans for her next jump.

She indicated she would take off tomorrow, following the British air route to Khartoum, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. By this route she planned to avoid flying over the Sahara desert.

Miss Earhart, accompanied by Captain Fred Noonan, her navigator, made the 1,900-mile Atlantic crossing in 13 hours and 22 minutes which aviators here said set

RIVERS, WORN OUT, TO REST 10 DAYS IN HOSPITAL HERE

Arduous Work Exhausts Governor; Trip to Coast Will Follow Virtual Seclusion With All But Major Business Barred.

EXECUTIVE HOPING TO DO 'MUST' JOBS

Appointments to School Board, Filling Highway Posts Among Objectives for Immediate Action.

Near a breakdown as the result of an arduous schedule during the last 60 days, Governor Rivers will enter an Atlanta hospital this morning to remain 10 days, after which he will leave with his family on a trip to the west coast on which he hopes to recuperate, it was learned last night.

The Governor will leave Atlanta on the night of June 16, stopping off in New Orleans on his way to Los Angeles and San Francisco. He plans to remain in California a week, during which he will attend the national convention of the Woodmen of the World at San Francisco. His schedule calls for his return to Atlanta not later than July 4.

Will Carry On. Although his physicians have ordered him to drop all except necessary duties, it was learned, the Governor plans to set up a sort of executive office at the Crawford W. Long hospital, where he has engaged a suite. There he will carry on the business of the state, although he cannot receive visitors and will confer with only those state department heads he must see.

Governor Rivers confirmed reports of his hospital trip and his west coast journey over the telephone from his home at Lakeland last night.

While at the hospital the chief executive hopes to complete the following major phases of his administration:

Unemployment Drops 500,000 During April

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—Unemployment in the United States declined in April to 6,981,000, lowest for any month since the summer of 1931, the National Industrial Conference Board, a research organization sponsored by business corporations, reported today.

The April drop amounted to more than 500,000 and brought the decline since January to about 1,400,000.

The decrease between March and April reflected an increase in employment of 270,000 in agriculture, 110,000 in manufacturing and lesser amounts in other fields, the survey said.

9,195-Vote Lead Is Held by Wets; City Returns Slow

Social Security Measures Given Heartiest Indorsement; Rivers Expresses Pleasure at Result; Richmond Leads Parade.

ACTS' ADVANTAGE IS NEVER PUSHED

'Progressive Measures' of Governor's Regime Cardinal Components in Measures Indorsed.

Georgia counties early this morning apparently were marching in an unbroken column with majorities for 26 constitutional amendments, considered generally to be the heart of Governor Rivers' "New Deal" program of legislation.

Jumping into a head start when first returns began trickling in, the measures proposing changes in the state's basic law held to the front throughout the balloting, as reflected in the night's returns. Only one of the lot was ever in danger, that being No. 10, which would authorize counties to levy taxes to pay county farm and home demonstration agents. All counties with agents now are paying them from tax monies.

Victory for the amendments brings the people's indorsement unquestionably to policies enunciated by Governor Rivers in his campaign last summer and pushed by him through a trying session of the general assembly after his inauguration.

The parade of county majorities was led by Richmond, which, with almost a complete vote reported, showed a lead of ten to one for the Governor's program. Nearly all big-city counties followed suit.

Richmond, only slightly behind Fulton, Chatham, Bibb and Muscogee turned in handsome margins for the amendments.

Only in Twiggs county was any weakness shown in voting on the list as a whole, while Thomas county apparently had downed the county agent amendment. Substantial majorities, however, were given by Thomas to others.

Former Governor Eugene Talmadge, who stumped the state and besieged voters by radio against the changes, saw himself defeated for the second time in two consecutive years, both times by issues. His bid for the United States senate against Richard B. Russell Jr., last year resulted in a crushing victory for Russell. Early in the Roosevelt administration, Talmadge turned his then-powerful guns on the President and his recovery program. It was his platform, thus opposing policies of the national administration, that became an issue in the senatorial campaign.

Governor's Policies. Governor Rivers in his gubernatorial campaign, completely embraced Roosevelt's policies for the nation and advocate their application.

R. B. Giles Injured In Troup Accident

R. B. Giles, Atlanta attorney and former candidate for the legislature from Fulton county, was injured seriously Monday afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding with Miss Lillie Scheck, attorney and his former law partner, plunged off the highway four miles from LaGrange in Troup county and turned over four times down an embankment.

Giles was brought to Crawford W. Long hospital, where he was found to have suffered a badly mangled right arm, a severed right ear and possible internal injuries. Miss Scheck was not injured.

Miss Scheck, who was driving at the time, said that she had started around a large truck and trailer when the truck forced her off the road. The truck continued on, she said, and the license was not obtained.

Giles has practiced law in Atlanta for 15 years. He is a native Georgian and a graduate of Dahlgren Military school and Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee.

47 of Larger Counties in Wet Column, While 95 Others Vote for Retention of Bone-Dry Law.

With city precincts increasing the majority hourly but many country districts yet unheard from, the proposal for repeal of Georgia's 23-year-old bone dry law early this morning held a lead of 9,195 in the tabulation of yesterday's general election.

The issue was considered still very much in doubt.

With returns counted from about half of the state's 1,700 precincts the count stood:

For repeal: 64,790.
Against repeal: 55,595.

City Voting. This tabulation included all of Chatham county's 39 precincts, Bibb county complete, all but two of the boxes in Fulton county and all but a small portion of the vote in such heavily wet centers as Muscogee and Richmond counties, where repeal forces obtained large majorities.

The poll did not include more than a score of strongly dry rural counties which are known to be safe for the prohibition cause but which are not expected to give the drys anything like the wet majorities of the more thickly populated centers.

SALARY INCREASES STILL UNOFFICIAL, COMMISSION SAYS

'Merely Suggested' Is Explanation; Minutes Draft Shows Raises Approved.

Explanation that salary raises to 17 county employees were merely suggested at the June 2 meeting of the Fulton board of commissioners and are not official until minutes are ratified at the next board session was made yesterday.

Salary adjustments for the low-pay bracket employees were made at an executive session of the commission preceding the regular June meeting and the next day written into the minutes, it was revealed Monday.

No action on the salaries, which total approximately $5,000 annually, was taken in the board's open meeting and it was not announced when they were suggested. They were, however, included in the rough draft of the minutes of the June 2 meeting which were mailed to the commissioners for approval. In the draft they appeared as unanimously approved.

Drafts Show Change.
The "adjustments" were revealed late Monday when rough drafts of the June 2 commissioners' meeting were mailed to board members.

Recommendations that the salaries be raised were made by Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale, as chairman of the building and grounds committee; George F. Longino, as chairman of the public works committee; and Ed L. Almond, as chairman of the alms and juvenile committee.

It was explained the commissioners could raise the salaries of any employee in his department and have them recorded in the minutes of the meeting to be approved and ratified at the next board session.

This is what took place when the current raises were suggested, it was said. Yet, on the rough draft they appear as having been unanimously approved at the board meeting.

All raises, or salary adjustments, were granted to employees in the lower-pay bracket. County commissioners were quoted yesterday as saying the granting of these adjustments does not necessarily mean others will be given.

Business Progress In Recovery Parade

Brisk Furniture Sales Forecast for July.

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—Furniture makers are looking for brisk sales in July markets. Early spring markets fell far short of the bull's-eye. Some trade circles, searching for the reason, have cited strikes. Others have attributed the comparative timidity of dealers to fear of consumer resistance based on rising prices.

Shipments Increase

BINGHAMTON, June 8.—Delmar L. Kroehler, vice president of the Kroehler Manufacturing Company, announced today that total shipments so far this year are up almost 50 per cent over the same time a year ago.

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—"Textile World's" index of textile mill activity for the first four months of 1937 indicated a rate 25 per cent greater than for the similar period of 1936 and 34 per cent over that for the corresponding period of a "normal" year, taking the 1924-31 average.

Leaf Tobacco Company Declares Dividends.

RICHMOND, Va., June 8.—(AP)—Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va., declared an extra dividend of $1.50 and regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on common stock, both payable August 1 to stock of record July 14.

CARMICHAEL NAMED HEAD OF VANDERBILT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 8.—(AP)—Dr. James H. Kirkland, for 44 years chancellor of Vanderbilt University, will step down July 1 and Dr. Oliver Cromwell Carmichael, 45-year-old vice chancellor, will succeed him. The institution's board of trustees chose Carmichael today as Vanderbilt's third chancellor in its 62-year history.

Holding degrees from Oxford University, England, and the University of Alabama, he came to Vanderbilt two years ago from the presidency of Alabama College for Women at Montevallo, Ala. Dr. Kirkland said he would go to his Canadian summer camp near Toronto soon after he relinquishes the reins July 1.

GEORGE WILL PUSH FOR SCHOOL FUNDS

Senator Seeks $14,000,000 More for Vocational Education Work.

Senator Walter F. George, here a few hours yesterday on his return to Washington after delivering the commencement address Monday night at Mercer University, said he was rushing his return to the capital to fight for his bill to appropriate $14,000,000 additional for vocational education.

The senator said also he would attend a conference of farm leaders and certain representatives of cotton-growing states on the matter of organizing a fight to secure parity prices, as fixed by the Department of Agriculture, on all cotton grown in this country, both that for manufacture in the United States and for export to foreign markets.

"We will insist," the senator said, "on full parity for the entire cotton crop in the permanent farm program."

Explaining his vocational education bill, Senator George said the house had passed an additional $14,000,000 appropriation for vocational education, the same amount provided in the George bill, but that the budget commission has recommended a cut.

"I am hurrying back," he declared, "to make as vigorous a fight as I can before the appropriate committee of the senate to keep that additional amount set up by the house in the bill."

The senator spent the week-end at his home in Vienna. He said he did not go back home yesterday morning to vote in the general election, in which 26 proposed constitutional amendments and the question of repealing the state prohibition law were involved. He added, however, he had asked for an absentee ballot to be sent to his hotel here.

"If I get the ballot before my train leaves, I will mark it and mail to the election managers," he said.

McAdoo's first marriage to the former Mollie Tackberry Ferguson, whom he wed in the municipal building 15 years ago, ended in a divorce at Riverside, Cal., last Wednesday.

Two years ago McAdoo and a Miss Lumms were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct following upon a dispute over a $6.50 restaurant check here.

The charges were dropped, after the pair spent the night in jail, when McAdoo paid the check.

Boost in Southern Freight Rates Becomes New Weapon in Fight

New Schedule, Now Effective, Expected To Burden Southland's Commerce With $1,000,000 Additional Load Annually.

As railroads began applying new and higher rates yesterday on cotton, woolen and knitted products, which the Interstate Commerce Commission refused to suspend, leaders in the southeast's fight against freight rate differentials described as penalizing southern shippers $1,000,000 annually, intensified their efforts for recognition.

The new rate structure was expected by these leaders to become a new weapon in their campaign to beat down discriminatory practices.

Million-Dollar Exaction.

The new rates, which the Associated Southern Textile Mills charged increased cost of transporting textiles from Georgia and Alabama to consuming centers by approximately 20 per cent, assertedly will place a surcharge on southern shipments of at least $1,000,000 a year.

The Associated Mills said that the old rates, now increased by 20 per cent for the two states, imposed a penalty of about $750,000 annually.

A petition filed by Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, chairman of a committee of eight governors fighting for equalization, asking postponement of effective date of the new rates, was rejected by the ICC.

The commission, however, announced it would reopen the case for rehearing at a later date.

Another Attack Fends.

Graves and his associates in the fight, already have another broad attack on the differentials pending before the commission. In the wake of the imposition of the new

GREEN'S DEMANDS REFUSED BY NANCE

Atlanta Says He 'Can't Recognize' Ouster Order of AFL President.

Declaring he "can't recognize" orders of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that he relinquished claim to presidency of the Georgia Federation of Labor, A. Steve Nance yesterday reported "splendid progress" in organizing textile workers.

Nance is southeastern director of the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, affiliate of the CIO, a connection which Green has objected as being "disloyal" to the AFL. Nance has refused to resign either his TWOC job or the presidency of the GFL.

O. E. Petry, elected to the post of secretary-treasurer of one faction of GFL at the time Nance was named president of the same faction, and five members of their executive board share Green's disfavor with Nance. The seven have been called on to get out and to stop claiming leadership of GFL.

Nance said yesterday: "All I have to say to Mr. Green's order, which I can't recognize, is that we are making splendid progress organizing the textile workers of the south."

Nance and his associates have custody of the seal, funds, records and other property of the GFL and have declared they will not surrender them without a court order.

the act passed by the general assembly early this year. This board takes office July 1. The Governor is ex-officio chairman.

2. Confer with members of the Board of Public Safety and select a commissioner and deputy commissioner of the new state highway patrol. Details of the organization are to be left up to the commissioner and his deputy.

3. Name the personnel of the newly created State Radio Commission.

Hundreds Seek Post.
The chief executive is known to be considering hundreds of names in connection with the new State Board of Education but as far as can be learned he has not determined on the setup. It is understood that he plans a further conference with Superintendent M. D. Collins and immediate past and present officials of the Georgia Education Association before announcing the appointments.

Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, author of the law creating the State Department of Public Safety, is expected here tomorrow or Friday to confer with the Governor on the organization of the highway patrol. A number of men, outstanding in police and military circles, have been mentioned in connection with the post of commissioner, but it is known that as yet the Governor has not decided whom he shall favor for the post. Although the board elects the commissioner it is generally accepted that the place will go to the Governor's nominee.

The new State Radio Commission will take charge of station WGST and any other radio facilities the state may obtain. The Governor and Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, are named to membership on the commission in the act which provides for a commission of five members. Rivers has announced that he will tender places on the board to Major Clark Howell, publisher of The Constitution, whose father, the late Clark Howell, presented WGST to Tech, and also to L. W. Robert, secretary of the Democratic national committee. Robert, for some time, has been working in Washington on a program which would bring about an increase in WGST power.

Cabinet Will Assemble.
It was further learned last night that Speaker Roy V. Harris, of the house of representatives, plans to be in Atlanta from now until Governor Rivers leaves on his west coast trip. With Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to the Governor, and Miss Gertrude Liles, private secretary, Speaker Harris will assist in arranging conferences at the hospital.

The Governor's aides were insistent last night that he will be able to see only those persons with whom he has business concerning the three major matters to be disposed of within the next week. The stop-over in New Orleans has been arranged so that the Governor may confer with Governor Richard Leche, of Louisiana, regarding the pending southern fight against interstate freight rates.

In addition to Mrs. Rivers, their daughter, Miss Geraldine Rivers, a recent graduate of Young Harris College, will make the trip to California.

BOY DROWNS IN CREEK.
DUNLAP, Tenn., June 8.—(AP)—Thirteen-year-old Gene Dykes was drowned near here today while swimming in Bush creek.

Former Spanish Queen To Sell Her Jewels

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP)—The personal jewels of the former Queen of Spain are on the market, a young Fifth Avenue jeweler returned today from London to announce.

The jeweler, Paul Flato, said he had completed negotiations with Victoria Eugenie, begun last year when she was in this country, to put on sale gems valued at about $1,000,000.

Flato said the "sad Queen" told him she did not "have the right" to sell any personal jewelry and that crown jewels would not be included.

The jewels will be "shipped here later," he said.

State Score on Voting Amendments Stands 10-6 Over Five-Year Period

Most Additions to Constitution Made by Overwhelming Majorities Although Prohibition Law Is Kept on Statute Books Throughout Tests.

Down a five-year voting stretch preceding yesterday's vote Georgians tackled on ten amendments to the state constitution while rejecting six other proposed changes. In the same voting period Georgia voters left standing a long-lived dry law banning hard liquor but they did favor use of wine and beer.

Most of the amendments were attached to the constitution by large majorities.

Property Tax Precedent.
One of the proposed amendments in yesterday's balloting was similar in many respects to one which went down in defeat twice before. It was the property classification amendment.

In 1932 the amendment called for a classification of intangible property and provided a five-mill ad valorem tax. It failed by more than 69,000 votes. Its companion in the 1936 constitutional proposals classified properties for taxation together with tax limits and stipulated intangible property should be taxable.

The 1937 constitutional proposal classified taxable properties into tangible "and one or more classes of intangible personal property, including money."

Dry claimed a victory in the special May election of 1935 as they kept the prohibition law intact by 243 votes. Wets favored beer with 85,433 votes and wine with 83,155 votes against 76,608 and 74,535.

Six Written In.
The 1932 general election balloted six amendments onto the constitution while rejecting two. These amendments were passed in 1932:

had 13,257 votes for to 5,996 against in Fulton and 2,626 for to 1,545 in DeKalb.

Mayor Hartford and city administration leaders urged approval of the amendment, pointing out that passage would insure placing the municipality on a cash basis and "save at least $50,000 a year in interest and other costs."

The mayor last night expressed gratification at the vote.

Increase of the one mill school tax levied by Fulton county to one and one-half mills also was approved in the two counties. Fulton gave it 11,564 votes and listed 7,784 against. DeKalb voted 2,223 for and 2,052 against.

Urged by Wells.
Jere A. Wells, Fulton school superintendent, urged passage to raise $150,000 a year, which it was estimated would be lost to Fulton schools if the $2,000 homestead exemption measure was passed.

While DeKalb county was endorsing Fulton's amendments, citizens of Fulton were approving a move to empower DeKalb to establish and operate districts for fire prevention and sanitation and/or water. Fulton's vote on the issue was 14,626 for to 4,536 against. DeKalb polled 2,986 for and 1,317 against.

Charles A. Matthews, commissioner, and other DeKalb leaders, favored sanction of the proposal.

The amendment, listed as Amendment No. 1, vesting the state with authority to provide assistance to the aged, needy blind, dependent children, etc., had 14,811 votes for to 5,135 against in Fulton, and 3,114 for to 1,335 against in DeKalb.

A companion measure, listed as Amendment No. 2, and making the same provisions in the main, had 15,122 for to 5,156 against in Fulton and 3,060 for to 1,388 against in DeKalb.

Exemption Leads.
Exemption of Georgia homes and farms from ad valorem taxation up to the value of $2,000 mustered 15,062 votes for to 5,249 against in Fulton, while DeKalb county gave 2,916 for to 1,503 against.

Fulton gave the $300 personal property exemption amendment, called the "pots and pans" amendment throughout the state, 15,183 votes for to 5,978 against, and DeKalb listed 3,236 for and 1,372 against.

Classification of properties for taxation purposes, designed to tax intangibles at a reasonable rate, got 3,790 votes for to 6,038 against.

To convene the general assembly and inaugurate the Governor in January; to qualify a voter on payment of poll tax; to authorize school boards to contract for education, transportation and care of school children; to consolidate local school districts and the assumption of indebtedness of consolidated districts; abolishing justice courts in Richmond county and providing for the repayment of county funds advanced to state highways.

Those defeated in 1932 were the proposals for taxing intangible property and the projected creation of a senatorial district in Berrien, Cook and Lanier counties.

No amendments were proposed in 1933 and in the 1934 general election one was adopted providing for certain financing in Spalding county.

On Wet-Dry Issue.
The popular votes in 1935 centered on the wet-dry issues. There were no constitutional proposals that year.

Last year amendment opponents voted down four while three were passed.

Adopted were the creation of a state school superintendent; authorizing Moultrie to pass a zoning law and providing for the disposition of cases delayed in filing in the supreme court because of illness or death of the trial judge.

Rejected were two amendments dealing with the establishment of a lieutenant governor and his duties; lengthening a governor's term from two to four years and the property classification legislation.

In Fulton and DeKalb 2,651 for to 1,583 against in DeKalb. The amendment authorizing the pensioning of widows of Confederate veterans who were married prior to January 1, 1920, got 11,615 votes for to 8,558 against in Fulton boxes, and 2,132 for to 2,216 against in DeKalb.

Emergency Call.
Members of the general assembly were authorized to pay county themselves in the event of an emergency by getting 13,844 votes for to 6,192 against in 61 Fulton boxes, while DeKalb polled 2,661 for to 1,698 against.

Prevention of congestion of supreme court dockets and a provision affecting the conduct of the court in the event of the disqualification of one or more justices received 14,383 votes for to 5,565 against from 61 Fulton county boxes and 2,905 votes for to 1,398 against in DeKalb.

Enlargement of the powers of the courts of ordinary, municipal and police courts received 11,938 votes for to 7,373 against from 61 Fulton boxes, and 2,386 for to 1,697 against in DeKalb.

Levy of taxes to pay county agricultural and home demonstration agents in Georgia counties mustered 10,621 votes for to 9,049 against in 61 Fulton boxes, as DeKalb gave 2,018 for to 2,286 against.

Refunding of Swainsboro bonds and temporary loans by that municipality received 13,439 votes for to 4,924 against in Fulton, while DeKalb gave it 2,857 votes for to 1,228 against.

Temporary Loans.
Richmond county was authorized to make temporary loans by 13,893 votes for to 4,928 against from 61 Fulton precincts, and DeKalb polled 2,668 for to 1,191 against on the same issues.

Creation of a retirement fund for Chatham county employees received 13,065 votes for to 6,213 against in 61 Fulton precincts, as DeKalb polled 2,652 for to 1,424 against on the same issue.

The amendment authorizing cities and counties of the state having a population in excess of 1,000 persons to pass zoning and planning laws received 19,900 votes for to 5,043 against in 61 Fulton boxes, as compared to 2,892 for and 1,334 against in DeKalb.

Glynn county's zoning laws were given separate approval by a vote of 13,692 for to 4,817 against from 61 Fulton precincts, and DeKalb gave it a vote of 2,828 for to 1,242 against.

Dalton's bid for zoning authority also was approved by a vote of 14,135 for to 4,396 against from 61 Fulton boxes, and DeKalb followed with 2,860 for to 1,106 against.

Zoning Laws.
Forsyth, Milledgeville, Cordelle, Carrollton, Eastman, Fort Valley and McRae also were empowered voted on yesterday were cardinal components of his program.

Rivers' Statement.
At Valdosta, where he boarded a train for Atlanta early this morning, Governor Rivers issued the following statement:

"I am naturally very pleased with the result of the election, I felt that the people had not changed their views on the progressive measures they so strongly called for last year.

"I have not had an opportunity to study the returns and will have something further to say later. However, at this time do wish to thank the people for the splendid vote of confidence they have given the progress of the Democratic party."

Correspondent, Writing of Spain, Finds Signs of Grim War Missing

Businessmen Agree, He Says, That Most of Large Territory Occupied by Franco Is Now on Almost a Living Basis.

(Editor's Note: Readers of The Constitution remember the graphic dispatches of Edward J. Neil, Associated Press reporter, from the battlefronts of the Italian-Ethiopian war as well as his other stories on outstanding events. Once again he is covering a war this time the conflict in Spain. At present, he is with insurgent troops on the Bilbao battlefield.)

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish border.—(By Mail).—Back to the wars, but what a different picture this makes than the jungles of mountains, the burning deserts, hunger and thirst of Ethiopia, scene of the last war in this world of peace.

You enter insurgent Spain, lovely with its rolling green hills, sunshine and vivid flower colors of spring, at Irun on the French border, where last summer the civil war flamed in opening battle on the edge of this picturesque countryside known as the Cote d'Azur.

Little Sign of War.

Only a little away is Biarritz, playground of millionaires, and St. Jean de Luz, another brilliant resort. And but for lack of wealthy throngs, there is little outward sign that the civil war, now approaching the end of its first year of bloody conflict, broke out just across the way.

Only the first mobile guards.

Eleven: For 6,384, against 2,352. Twelve: For 5,818, against 2,315. Thirteen: For 6,214, against 2,470.

Fourteen: For 5,650, against 2,674.

Fifteen: For 6,323, against 3,166.

Sixteen: For 19,378, against 8,916.

Seventeen: For 5,758, against 2,296.

Eighteen: For 6,001, against 2,076.

Nineteen: For 5,936, against 2,095.

Twenty: For 5,919, against 2,075.

Twenty-one: For 4,939, against 3,077.

Twenty-two: For 5,623, against 2,788.

Twenty-three: For 5,885, against 2,159.

Twenty-four: For 5,737, against 2,173.

Twenty-five: For 5,309, against 2,625.

Twenty-six: For 5,558, against 2,634.

Confidence Expressed.

Headquarters for the Georgia Alcoholic Control Association, which conducted the campaign in support of repeal declared that later returns would only serve to increase the repeal majority while, although silent, the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition pointed out that two years ago repeal took an early lead only to be defeated in the final tabulation by the narrow margin of 243 votes.

Although there was no announcement from Fulton county officials, it was reported that returns from five boxes showed repeal leading.

Doughty for Repeal.
Doughty county, with a large majority for repeal, was the first of the larger counties to make a complete report. Its margin was about the same as given the repeal proposal in the 1935 referendum.

Chatham county came through with its usual large majority for repeal but the vote in that county was considerably less than that two years ago and the majority correspondingly less.

Fulton county was running about two to one for repeal. Two years ago it gave repeal a majority of 9,919 to 4,451, slightly more than two to one.

INTERSECTIONAL TARIFF

The refusal by the Interstate Commerce Commission to suspend the increase ordered in railroad freight rates on textile shipments originating in the southeast emphasizes again the discrimination perpetrated against southern industry by an apparent hierarchy determined upon penalizing all the other sections of the country in favor of the east. The I. C. C., however, announces it will hold further hearings on the textile rate question.

President Roosevelt has transmitted to congress a report from the TVA which brands the regional rate structure upon which railroad freights are now determined as nothing, in effect, but a protective tariff for the benefit of eastern industry.

The TVA report states: "Thus, one has here something remarkably similar to the working of a protective tariff, to the extent that certain favored interests effectively strive to protect themselves at home while retaining privileges elsewhere."

That one section of the nation should enjoy the benefits of such a "protective tariff" at the expense of others violates both justice and fair play. The entire system of territorial rates should be scrapped and a national structure substituted which would place all sections of the country on a parity.

Even prior to the higher rates on textiles from the south, which went into effect yesterday, southern cotton manufacturers were penalized by higher rates than those paid by their eastern competitors. A carload of manufactured textiles from the southeast was compelled, under the rates approved by the I. C. C., to pay more freight charges to any specified point than a similar cargo from the east, even though the distance hauled was less for the southern shipment than for its eastern competitor.

With the price of raw material, cotton, fixed in world markets and with the price of the textile product likewise established, the only place where this higher shipping cost could be absorbed was in wages. That is one of the principal reasons why wage scales in the south have been uniformly lower than in the east. The southern manufacturer, though he desired to give his employees every possible advantage, found his hands tied. He had to absorb such differentials as this in his pay roll, or find himself unable to sell in competition with his "freight-rate-protected" rivals in the east.

Thus, ultimately, it is the southern worker who pays this tribute to eastern industry.

What the effect of the additional differential between southern and eastern rates on textiles will be cannot be accurately foretold. It places an added handicap upon the mills of the south, thus increasing the indirect tax they have to absorb.

The TVA report sent to congress points out that for every $1 paid by eastern shippers in freight rates for the same goods hauled the same distance, shippers in the south have to pay $1.39, shippers in the west $1.47, in the southwest $1.75 and in the mountain Pacific section $1.71.

There is no justifiable reason why industry as a whole should be compelled to pay this tribute to the east. Unless national parity in freight rates is established, the manufacturers and those who work for them will demand congressional action to end the injustice.

Or, failing this, they will turn from the railroads to other forms of transportation.

WORLD ADVENTURE

There is something epic in the story of the world cruise of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Strout, in a 37-foot vessel. Mr. Strout, a former professor at Georgia Tech, not only built his circumnavigating ship himself, but went into the north Georgia woods and personally selected the trees from which her lumber came.

Mrs. Strout, worthy helpmeet, raised and canned the vegetables, two tons of them, that furnished the ship stores on which the wedded argonauts lived as they circled the earth in their homemade caravel.

Adventure is not confined to history. It waits, around the corner, for men and women of today who have the gift of perception. There is romance of quarterly wind and a belling sail, with the lift and swell of ocean for those with the courage to commit themselves to the deep. There is the camaraderie of the wide spaces of the earth, the fellowship of the open sky and the greeting of the free creatures for those with the chord within their hearts to respond.

To such the world is an open book, ever calling for understanding. These are kin to the vikings who dared the broad Atlantic in the long ago. They are blood brother to the bold men of the sea who sailed into the unknown seeking new worlds.

Atlantans salute with pride their former fellow citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Strout, and wish them Godspeed upon the final lap of their world encircling voyage, from the Bahamas to New York.

THE NATIONAL BOY SCOUT JAMBOREE

On June 30 the first National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America will open, to continue for 10 days, at Washington. In a 350-acre tent city along the historic Potomac river, 25,000 Scouts, representing more than a million belonging to the organization in America, will gather.

Most of these boys, imbued with the spirit of sturdy independence that Scouting teaches, will attend the Jamboree at their own expense. They have, in the vast majority of cases, earned and saved the necessary money themselves.

They will demonstrate, at the national capital, the self-reliance they have made a part of Scouting character and they will provide vivid demonstration of the youth resource that constitutes America's greatest hope of the future.

There will be an unspoken message in the presence of those Scouts for all the leaders of the nation at Washington. Administration executives, federal employees and members of congress should gain new inspiration as they see these boys, typical of the coming citizens who, primarily, they are presumed to serve.

And the Scouts themselves will receive new pride in Americanism from their visit to the heart of the nation. They will return to their own communities with a new knowledge of the blessings and the responsibilities inherent in citizenship of a great democracy.

FOR HOME BEAUTY

The annual garden school conducted by the University of Georgia at Athens will be held June 17 and 18. In co-operation with the Garden Club of Georgia the university will offer a course in landscape gardening and the growth of flowers and shrubs for the small home, as well as a special course designed to qualify those attending as flower show judges. Certificates will be awarded in the judging course.

The development of garden consciousness among home makers today is one of the most encouraging indications of advancing civilization. Scarcely a city or town which does not hold its annual flower show and every community boasts about the natural loveliness of its residential sections. The "outdoor living room" is considered practically an essential of the average home and the blossoms of shrubbery and flowers, with stretches of smooth green lawn, are recognized as of high material value in assessing the price of home property.

Hundreds of garden lovers from Georgia and other states attended the university garden school last year and a still larger enrollment is expected this year.

The results will be seen in enhanced beauty of the land which surrounds the thousands of new homes which, aided by federal and other financing plans, are now springing up all over the state.

"NATURAL BIOLOGICAL UNITS"

The federal district penitentiary at Mexico City will no longer refer to those who must be kept within its walls as "prisoners." A dispatch from the republic to the south states that in future all inmates will be known as "natural biological units susceptible of correction."

And the United States, struggling with a penal system admittedly unsatisfactory, has been accustomed to consider Mexico as a comparatively backward country!

Probably they no longer call it a "penitentiary" in Mexico. It is logical to reclassify a place of such scientific reformation as a "unitary." Each "biological unit," it is reported, is psychoanalyzed upon entry and the course of necessary treatment to bring about the desired correction in character and habits is prescribed.

Each "unit" is put to work and is paid for his labor. Out of that pay is subtracted the cost of his food and clothing as well as a reasonable rental for the cell he occupies. The balance is divided, 40 per cent going to those who suffered because of his crime, 30 per cent to his dependent family and 30 per cent to a savings account, to be kept until he regains his freedom, when it provides the capital for a new start in life.

Penologists in the United States will watch the working out of this Mexican experiment with close interest. There seems to be nothing wrong with the idea. It is quite possible it may point the way to a new and better way of handling criminals.

It would probably be advisable, however, to have several husky guards near by the first time an American gangster heard himself called a "natural biological unit."

"The best things in life are free," said the songwriter, for he had never priced neutrality.

Editorial of the Day

THESE COMMENCEMENT DAYS

(From the Columbia State.)
The thousands who are commencing life these commencement days should beware the tragedy that comes from too much practicality. The panacea for our distresses is a richer imagination.

Imagination! The ghost of an old gray mare trots in front of every Crescent Limited. We get the idea from H. G. Wells and Richard Dana Skinner. Our imagination has failed to keep pace with our inventive and thinking apparatus. So tied down to materiality were we that we called our first locomotives "iron horses," because our minds had been limited to horse transportation.

This same old gray mare held down the automobile the same way. We had no more dream capacity than to call it a "horseless carriage." We stuck to the same old gray-mare roads with their quirks and turns and narrowness; and now reaching the record of killing 35,000 or 40,000 a year, we still stick to them. No imagination of anything bigger and wider and more handsome. Crippled we are with a mule imagination!

The trouble with our inventors and manufacturers is they have imagination to invent practical machines that can carry us swiftly, but no imagination in carrying us safely. That demands a quality of mind and heart which our schools are not teaching successfully. They can't. It is born only within. It is a quality that embraces a care and love for humanity, an imagination that casts builds not for profit alone, but for what is best for mankind.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

WARMER WASHINGTON, June 8.—Everything gets hot in Washington after June 1, and this does not mean only the weather. Humidity of legislation increases as the temperature rises.

It is an old political custom for the directors of affairs to hold back their warmest bills until the legislators become slightly groggy from the summer heat. Congress is less inclined to be meticulous when the thermometer is 90 in the shade. That is the time when lobbyists, official and private, get in their best work.

Thus, the season's heat record for legislation has been established in the new Mansfield power bill, introduced a few days ago as an administration measure. The bill was written downtown by unknown authors who seem to know a thing or two about stoking a legal furnace in June. Among the feverish provisions they proposed in the bill are these two following propositions:

OATHS No person can be appointed as director, administrator or member of the proposed new regional TVA's "unless he professes belief in the wisdom and feasibility" of this proposed law. In other words, officials of this new government agency will be required presumably to take an oath that they think the law is wise and workable.

Such a provision of law has never been thought of in any of the thousands of laws which have been passed, including prohibition. All other government officials of all other departments are required only to perform their duties and to uphold the constitution, but the new regional planning agency must guarantee personally that the writers of the law were wise and efficient.

SUITS However, that is only a cool gust compared with the provision designed to prevent lawsuits such as those by which the TVA has been tied up. The unknown authors decree that no one can sue unless he furnishes bond to pay all damages, loss of time through delay, etc., which might be suffered by the government or anyone else under an injunction issued by the courts. And they say that these damages for all losses and expenses to the government must be paid if the plaintiff loses the suit.

From a practical standpoint, this means no one can even start a suit without furnishing bond for several million dollars, and no bonding company will ever back a plaintiff when the law says the plaintiff must pay all damages unless he wins the suit.

In short, it means: No suits.

By legislative fiat, it is proposed to command allegiance to the law and to prevent suits against the law. This may have been proposed in connection with some other law in history, but the oldest legislative clerk cannot remember it.

Note: The bill is supposed to have been written by the Unofficial Attorney General Cohen with the help of TVA attorneys, but this supposition is being denied in congress. There the word is being passed around that nobody knows who wrote the bill.

COOL Mr. R. is standing the weather much better than the legislators. Callers from congress found him last week wearing apparently old trousers and no coat. His shirt was tieless and open at the neck. He was dressed about the same as for a yachting trip.

The White House cooling system was working at about 70 degrees, and so was he.

VISITORS Four well-dressed persons, using a broad "A" and identifying themselves as British bankers, have been seen around Washington within a week. They were not together and apparently were not officially calling upon government authorities. Outwardly they seemed to be merely vacationing in Washington at the particular moment of the latest gold scare in London.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has been insisting daily that no coronation services for gold are contemplated by him, and most observers believe him.

The general presumption is that the visitors are working unofficially on gold co-operation methods between Washington and London.

LEGISLATIVE EXCURSION

The following disclosure of how lobbyists win friends and influence people was posted on the bulletin board in the house as an official announcement:

"The group sponsoring government ownership of Federal Reserve Banks are making a boat trip June 6. It is a good-will, get-together trip. Among the distinguished guests present will be Mr. Dale Carnegie, author of the best-book seller, 'How to Win Friends and Influence People'; several United States senators; Colonel Lawrence Westbrook, of Texas and Washington; Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale University; 25 commissioners of agriculture from 25 different states; and many others. More than 100 members of congress have arranged to make the trip. The boat will leave at 10:30 a. m. and return at 9:30 p. m. A few short talks will be made."

The announcement did not say who paid for the boat.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A man must work
For love of the job,
If he'd get far
In this life:
To work for pay
Alone, is though
He'd wed for a cook,
Not a wife.

Joy in the job
Is the thing that spells
Success, or the lot
Of a slave:
To watch the clock
And wage, too much,
Is the path to an
Unmourned grave.

Some Impressions of the ## Oxford Group Movement.

Did you read that fascinating story in Sunday's Constitution, by Lamar Ball, about the "Oxford Group" and the two visitors in Atlanta, here to talk with individuals about the movement?

I had the pleasure of talking, for a little while, with the two, Charles H. Haines and James D. Newton.

It's quite a thing they are doing. Going about, at their own expense, just talking with the individuals with whom they come in contact. Talking about a movement that defies labeling. Something that belongs in the realm of ethics and the spirit. Something which, if instilled into the hearts and consciences of men and women must inevitably result in a renaissance of hope in a perplexed world.

As I understand it, the Oxford Group idea leaves the individual absolutely free as to religious belief, but calls on him to surrender the direction of his life to God. It doesn't even attempt to define the conception of God he shall accept. That, too, is left to his own conscience.

However, having agreed to live a God-controlled life a man must, of course, make honesty his invariable rule, in so far as his finite capacities permit. He must be honest in the highest sense. He must be open and frank in his dealings with others, laying his cards on the table and showing why he follows a certain course, why he does thus and so.

As It Affects

Industry.

The Oxford Group movement, on its face, may be a powerful factor in the solution of industrial conflict. If both sides to a misunderstanding accept the idea and are absolutely frank and honest in their mutual dealings, there will be no mistrust. And, without mistrust, there can be no disputes.

Thus the employer would be entirely frank in talking of the financial condition of the business with his employees. He would not deal in generalities, but would lay out facts before them. If conditions warranted, he would invite the employees to share in the firm's prosperity by increasing their wages.

If conditions did not warrant it, the employees would understand, why. The employees, on their side, would have to be just as honest and just as frank. They would have to accept smaller wages, if necessary, but they'd be told the actual facts which made this necessary.

Mutual Trust,

Is the Point.

Mutual confidence and trust in each other is the vital point in this expression of the Oxford Group movement.

Of course, going a step farther, it would result in all, both employer and employee, working enthusiastically side by side for the love of the job. It would mean that workers would take their first pride in work well done and think of wage scales as of minor importance. It would mean the employer would think of his efforts in terms of service to public and to his own employees, with profits as a secondary consideration.

It would mean a man went to his job, each day, because he had an enthusiastic interest in that work for the sake of the work itself.

In short, it would require those standards of joy in work and loyalty to the organization for which you work, whether as boss or hired man, which are absolutely essential for a man who would succeed in the newspaper profession.

I speak of newspapering because it is what I know best. The same rule may be true in other activities.

But I do know that, in more than thirty years, I have never yet seen a youngster make a good newspaperman out of himself. If he didn't have that enthusiasm in his job, that love of the game, that made the hours he worked a matter of utmost indifference and the amount of money in his pay envelope nothing at all except necessary support for himself and his family.

To such a man, the pay envelope expanded in the natural course of events. But, more important by far, he became a first-class newspaperman, doing a hard job and doing it well.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Sunday, June 9, 1912:

"A tract of 50 acres at Silver Lake has been selected by the site committee from the trustees of Oglethorpe University as the location of the new million-dollar, all-southern male university which will be built in Atlanta. The contract for the site was closed yesterday."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Thursday, June 9, 1887:

"The South Carolina editors are seeing the sights in New York. An editor can have a good deal of fun in New York if he has a mind to. We wish our esteemed contemporaries well."

World's Window

By PIERRE VAN PASSEN.

LIFT UP YOUR HEARTS!

NEW YORK.—When you read these days of the terrors of the civil war in Spain how whole towns and villages are blotted out with their inhabitants and then read that all this is but a foretaste of what a real war will bring wherein the decision will depend, according to expert military observers, on the manner in which a civil population can best be terrorized with gas and germs high explosives and incendiary bombs, you are apt to lose courage.

You are apt to lose courage, in fact, by merely looking around you. So much that is mean and shameful and sordid, in this bitter, relentless, inexorable struggle for existence which makes of this earth a hell for many, where it should be made a counterpoint of paradise of happiness and contentment.

The church advises us to lift our hearts upwards, to look away, into a purer sphere, into the realm of the glorified Christ. It is well to look in that direction, but this call to look upward does not signify to fasten our glance upon pious islands of peace and harmony. Never does the gospel ask men to isolate themselves in ivory towers of isolation or in some atmosphere of spiritual snobism, the worst of all snobisms.

The call: Sursum Corda, upwards your hearts, is an appeal for gratitude, to glorify the name of God on this earth. It does not mean: escape from this world, fix your eyes and your thoughts exclusively on the fatherland with the many mansions. It is not a call to dream. We are called to thank God that He still reigns and governs in this world.

How is the name of God to be glorified? Surely not by planning the destruction of human lives, through an armament campaign; surely not by the perpetuation of conditions which deprive millions of human beings from a chance at well-being, education and enlightenment; surely not by assuming that dog-in-the-manger attitudes which say: Everybody for himself. There is far too much of the spirit of the jungle in our dealings with our fellow-men.

"What matter your sacrifices," the Lord says through the mouth of one of the prophets of old. "Your burnt offerings, your pious prayers and festive choruses are an abomination to me, so long as justice does not flow like a brook of clear water."

THE OLD ORDER PASSETH.

All the finest things, the best things that civilization has ever developed have not been developed by greed for gold or power, nor by selfish ambition, but in the service of God and God's long-suffering humanity.

Today when we stand in the presence of a tragic crisis in world affairs, when it is obvious that mankind has arrived at the crossroads and must choose its way into the future, we must lift our hearts upwards, for on high lies the model for the new world that is to be born. Now is the time to lay the foundations for a higher, nobler, better social order.

The old order is passing. This everybody has understood. What shall the new be like?

"Lift up your hearts," comes the advice. When nations learn to put their economic and industrial affairs in order so that people who produce will have that with which to buy back what they produce—then the nations shall also learn to quarrel with other nations as to who shall have this or that sphere of development or where they shall dispose of surplus.

There will be no peace on earth until we have found the basis of economic justice in dealing first with each other and then nation to nation. This is the way that leads to peace and to the ultimate establishment of that "kingdom" for which Christ prayed. Indeed that is the only solution, what the fathers called "Solutio Christi."

"Rise to the thought—live in the widening race,
Help make the state more like
God's dwelling-place,
Paths of life divine as yet untold."

A social body for the soul of God.

Summer Campgrounds.

More than 6,000 camp grounds will be ready for this season's vacation visitors to the 160 national forests, the United States Forest Service says.

Teachers in America.

Since 1920 there have been 18 per cent more men teachers and only 6 per cent more women teachers in the public elementary schools of the United States.

The Virgin Islands.

The Virgin Islands of the United States, formerly the Danish West Indies, were bought for $25,000,000 by the United States from Denmark in a treaty proclaimed January 25, 1917.

Enlisted Men Are Promoted, But Never Boss Graduates of West Point

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There seems to be an increasing sentiment in favor of American and British co-operation to save the civilization of free men. Such a partnership may become necessary, and our people may welcome it, but it should not be entered into without general understanding of its terms.

The first requirement will be that the tail shall wag the dog, for men conscious of their superiority do not surrender leadership to others.

To understand the attitude of upper class Englishmen, it is necessary to understand the system by which they keep all power and privilege in their own hands.

The foundation of the plan is the private school. England has over 150 private prep schools for boys, but only a half-dozen of these confer the right to rule. And only one boy in 500 is permitted to enter.

These are not colleges, but are equivalent to our grammar and high schools. A boy is admitted at the age of nine or 10.

The headmasters of the schools have absolute authority to admit or reject applicants, and they admit only the sons of the rich and powerful. The son is admitted to the school his father attended, which means in practice that he inherits the right to enter the school that will make him great.

The situation would be similar in America if no boy could attend a St. Louis high school unless his father did, and graduates of St. Louis schools were automatically qualified and scheduled to hold most of the big jobs.

That is what happens in England. No matter where the boys finish their education, the fact that they attended one of the half-dozen right prep schools assures them a place in the inner council. Old grads take care of them and thus keep all power and privilege in the hands of the elect.

The "right" schools, which train little more than 6,000 youngsters, gave England more than half of the present members of parliament, the prime minister and all members of the cabinet, and a large majority of the leaders in every privileged group.

It seems a catty thing to say, but these men were schooled in snobishness. All England regards them as superiors, and they so regard themselves.

Since they are superior to other Englishmen, they are obviously superior to men of the dominions and America. It is a conviction as deeply rooted as their loyalty to the crown.

They have a right to feel as they please, and it is certainly no affairs of ours; but Americans who think one man as good as another should understand the English caste system before entering a partnership which they will hope to dominate.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"A sentimentalist is one who would enjoy without incurring the great experiences of life."

This was George Meredith's definition but it is not exclusive of others. A sentimentalist, it has always seemed to us, is a self-conscious emotionalist in whom the self-consciousness outweighs the emotion. He loves the picture of himself having fine feelings, so well that he is careless about both the source and the effect of them, taking them often from a false source and indulging in them as often with a foul effect. The harm done in this world by maudlin sentimentalists would be hard to measure. Particularly are they harmful when they espouse a really fine cause. Their excesses, their pious platitudes, their fainting heads and effervescent inanities, make a great cause against the cause with those who oppose it and make those who favor it falter in real because of the silly association involved.

We know people for whom the very moon and stars have been spoiled irrevocably by the "ah's" and "oh's" of maudlin sentimentalists under a night sky.

"Heard melodies are sweet," said Keats, "but those unheard are sweeter." Not for the sentimentalists, though. Unless he makes himself heard about melodies, when it is obvious that he has arrived at the crossroads and must choose its way into the future, we must lift our hearts upwards, for on high lies the model for the new world that is to be born. Now is the time to lay the foundations for a higher, nobler, better social order.

The old order is passing. This everybody has understood. What shall the new be like?

"Lift up your hearts," comes the advice. When nations learn to put their economic and industrial affairs in order so that people who produce will have that with which to buy back what they produce—then the nations shall also learn to quarrel with other nations as to who shall have this or that sphere of development or where they shall dispose of surplus.

GEN. MOSELEY REVIEWS BAUMGARTNER CASE

Editor Constitution: I read with great interest and deep appreciation the editorial in The Constitution, "What's the Purpose?" The Constitution invariably takes matters of this kind, and I want you to know we appreciate your support.

Many of these veterans deserve our sympathy. As the war recedes further and further into the background, their stories and claims regarding their service increase proportionately, and especially their demands as to what the government owes them. In some of these cases, as you so well know, the man was not overseas and was only in service in this country a very few weeks—in fact, not long enough to do him any good!

This case of veteran Baumgartner has been a trial and great disappointment to the military authorities. In a large human organization like an army there are many difficulties, large and small, to adjust. We have inspectors available to investigate all such cases promptly. I go over them very carefully myself, to see that full justice is done.

In the case of veteran Baumgartner I felt that perhaps the strain of his hunger has upset his mental balance and I therefore sent him the suggestion that if he would cease his hunger strike he would take him into the post hospital; that we would then listen to all his complaints with a view to reaching a proper adjustment. He declined my offer, and finally the commanding officer of his post was compelled to discharge him. I am sorry for him and his wife, and especially his little children, but the foundation stone of an army is discipline, justly enforced.

The right of appeal exists and it can be exercised repeatedly in the same case. Decisions finally reached, however, must be loyal, accepted and obeyed. Otherwise, your army soon degenerates into a mob.

GEN. VAN HORN MOSELEY,
Major General, Commanding
Fourth Corps Area,
Atlanta, Ga., June 4, 1937.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS WARNED BY MALCOM

Police To Cover Entire City as Intensive Drive Opens Today.

Intensive drive against traffic violators will begin today, with motorcycle patrolmen covering virtually the entire city at various hours of the day and night, it was announced yesterday by Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic bureau.

"A plan has been worked out whereby traffic police will visit every stop light and stop intersection," he said, "and the men have been instructed to see that strict enforcement of the ordinance passed Monday by city council, forbidding left turns on Peachtree street, between Ellis and Baker streets, is carried out. Captain Malcom said the new drive is due to the fact that men formerly busy in the police training school, which ended Monday, are now available for traffic work.

HITLER OR PONTIFF, IS NAZIS' DEMAND

Official German Press Orders Citizens To Make a Choice Between Two.

BERLIN, June 8. (AP)—The official Nazi press demanded today that Germans choose between Hitler and the Vatican.

The latest manifestation of the breach between church and state was published in the party newspaper Westdeutscher at Cologne.

"We must now demand one single decision," the government-controlled newspaper stated editorially—"are you willing to obey Adolf Hitler more than a church government, which long ago became a secular power?"

"It is quite evident in Rome that there is not a religious leadership but purely secular center of power, fighting to maintain its suzerainty over the whole peoples."

Linked to Mundelein. The editorial was another of the many in the past few weeks directed against Pope Pius for his failure to rebuke George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, who criticized Hitler and charged that undue publicity was given trials of German Catholic monks and lay brothers on charges of immorality.

The press continued its criticism of the cardinal and the Vatican on this count, but took no outward notice of the Sunday incidents—which included fist-fighting in Munich.

Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels warned in his speech May 28 Catholic clergy might be haled into court if the church again questioned fairness of the immorality trials.

It seemed likely Goebbels' address had heralded a fight to the end.

Conflict of Philosophies. "The conflict between Dr. Goebbels and the Cardinal Archbishop of Chicago, Mundelein, is not a duel between two men, each of whom is truly representative of his circle," wrote the Lakelandizer the morning after Goebbels' address.

"It is a conflict between two systems of philosophy."

It is interesting to observe that the two men who personally were criticized by Cardinal Mundelein were reared as Catholics—Hitler and Dr. Goebbels.

OIL STRIKE TO END

Mexican Workers To Return to Jobs Today.

MEXICO CITY, June 8. (UP)—The petroleum strike which has tied up the nation's fuel oil and gasoline supplies since May 28, will end at noon tomorrow, the Mexican Oil Workers' Union notified the federal conciliation board tonight.

Announcement of the walkout's termination came as the government held soldiers and police ready for any emergency that might result from the workers' earlier decision not to respect an agreement by the union to order the men back to work today. Gasoline supplies in the federal capital almost were non-existent and more than 90 per cent of the buses in operation here were withdrawn from service. Milk deliveries were curtailed because of disruption of train and truck services.

BRITAIN TO CONTINUE MONETARY POLICY

Simon Contemplates No Change in Chamberlain's Gold Plan.

LONDON, June 8. (UP)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, assured the house of commons today that Britain would continue to buy and sell in the gold market to prevent any wide fluctuations in exchange rates.

Simon, bombarded by questions since the recent collapse in gold values, spoke to a crowded house as he said:

"No change in the monetary policy is contemplated."

The long awaited statement was carefully phrased and put to rest questions from labor opposition which were intended to extract a pledge of support from the government in maintaining the sterling gold price.

"I am glad of the opportunity of making this statement with the view of removing some of the misconceptions which have been prevalent. The British monetary policy remains as laid down by my predecessor (Neville Chamberlain) in his statement before the world economic conference in 1933, the declaration by delegates of the British commonwealth at the same time and also in the tripartite agreement last September."

"No change in this policy is contemplated nor has one come before the imperial conference. I am informed that the bulk of the recent offerings in the London gold market are due to disbanding."

Prior to the Simon statement in commons, the price of gold on the official bullion market had dipped 1-1/2 pence to 140 shillings per ounce. There was a total of $2,400,000 in gold taken at price fixing.

WATCHMAN SHOOTS BURGLAR SUSPECT

Anderson, S. C., Man Admitted to Grady; No Charges Made.

A burglar suspect was shot and critically wounded in the abdomen with a bullet from a .32-caliber pistol following a tussle at 11 o'clock last night with M. W. Randall, of 863 Fox street, night watchman for the Miller Motor Express Company, 287 Mills street, N. W., according to police reports.

The wounded man was admitted to Grady hospital. He was tentatively identified as Harry Shelton, 24, of Anderson, S. C.

Randall told police he heard a noise in the rear of the building and found the suspect. A tussle ensued, and the suspect broke and ran around the corner, into a blind alley off Marietta street.

Randall followed, and fired one shot, he said. Although wounded, the suspect staggered to a loading platform some distance away and crawled under it. Randall said he dragged him from under the platform and took him to the hospital.

No charges were placed against Randall.

8 REBEL ISLANDERS START TERMS HERE

Puerto Ricans Convicted of Plotting To Overthrow Rule of U. S.

Eight heavily guarded prisoners, convicted of conspiring to overthrow the United States government's control of Puerto Rico, arrived in Atlanta yesterday morning by airplane from Miami, to which they had been flown from San Juan.

The Puerto Ricans, headed by Pedro Albizu Campos, president of the Puerto Rican Nationalist party and a former Harvard student, were taken to the federal penitentiary. Campos must serve a term of 10 years and others of the group were given sentences as low as four years.

The prisoners, handcuffed and in charge of Donald A. Draughon, United States marshal in Puerto Rico, left San Juan Monday morning, stopped at Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, and flew on to Miami.

The men were convicted last summer and were denied an appeal by the United States supreme court.

Cooper, who sentenced eight Puerto Rican Nationalists to prison terms for conspiring to overthrow the United States government on the island, escaped injury late today as between 12 and 15 shots were fired at him. He was returning to his home in an automobile when the incident occurred.

The shots were fired by three or four men, the judge afterwards declaring for a few seconds there was a regular fusillade.

Judge Cooper is a former Governor of South Carolina and has been United States district judge for the district of Puerto Rico since January, 1934.

One bullet pierced the windshield, narrowly missing Detective Francisco Davila, the judge's personal bodyguard.

The assailants were grouped about an automobile upon which they appeared to be working.

Acting Governor Rafael Menendez Ramos blamed Nationalists.

TEXTILE OPERATOR VOICES APPROVAL OF WAGE MINIMUM

Birmingham Cotton Mill Owner Urges Protection From Foreign Imports.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—Donald Comer, Birmingham cotton mill operator, said today he favored establishment of a minimum wage "as high as the traffic will bear," but asked that protection be given against foreign imports and that freight rates be "equalized" to protect the south.

Testifying before a committee on the Black-Connerly bill, he asserted the flat minimum wage and maximum work week should be fixed by congress instead of by an administrative board.

Urging steps to boost rural incomes, he said "there is a direct relation between farm income and industrial wages."

He warned against the effect of foreign competition. "Those of us who have the job of processing, as we shorten our hours and increase our wages and costs, cannot help but be concerned over the increasing inflow of foreign goods that will surely result unless prevented."

He contended southern textile mills could employ 50,000 workers if given the benefit of tariff protection.

ROOSEVELT REBUFFS LABOR BILL CHANGES
WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—President Roosevelt and administration leaders in congress rebuffed today a series of proposals for major amendments to the Black-Connerly labor standards bill.

The President told reporters he doubted the advisability of amending the legislation to prohibit interstate shipments of goods produced by monopolies.

Asked about the suggestion by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, that such a change be made, the President said he supposed it would be possible but that he was always somewhat suspicious of anything that made the passage of legislation more complicated.

Meanwhile the coauthors of the bill, Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, of the senate labor committee, and Chairman Connerly, Democrat, Massachusetts, of the house labor committee, expressed opposition to any effort to extend the wage-hour provisions of the bill to agricultural labor.

British Lady Fined $7,500 for Emery

CROYDON, England, June 8. (UP)—Lady Elizabeth Prescott, the former Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes Melcer, of Virginia, was fined $7,500 today on a charge of duty to evade customs duties on $10,150 worth of purchases which she brought here from Paris.

Lady Prescott, who married Sir George Prescott in 1932, was accused of attempting to evade payment of duty on articles of jewelry, lingerie, furs, and other clothing.

She said she forgot to declare the articles, but the presiding magistrate described her offense as a "despicable" one, and ordered the fine.

HOLLYWOOD ACTOR, EX-ATLANTAN, DIES

Monroe Owsley Started Career in Southern Road Show.

Monroe Owsley, motion picture actor and native of Atlanta, died Monday morning at a hospital in Belmont, Cal., at about the same time that Jean Harlow died in Los Angeles, an Associated Press dispatch revealed last night.

A heart attack superinduced by indigestion apparently caused death.

Owsley's father was Harry M. Owsley, a salesman. The family moved from this city many years ago, although a brother, Harry A. Owsley, lived here several years following.

Owsley, who was 35, obtained his first acting experience with a roadshow touring the south. He later played in stock companies in Cincinnati, Dayton, Philadelphia, Chicago and Springfield, Mass.

He made his Broadway debut in "Young Blood," with Helen Hayes, and, following his success in the stage play, "Holiday," went to Hollywood to appear in a screen version of the stage hit.

He appeared in many pictures since that time, notably "Ten Cents a Dance," "Hat Check Girl," "Call Her Savage," "Behold My Wife," "Goin' to Town" and "Rumba."

VETERANS OF GRAY TAKE TINY MASCOT

Georgia Confederates En Route to Reunion, Probably Last for Some.

General A. J. Womack, of Macon, commander of Georgia's Confederate veterans, headed this state's delegation to what may be the last Confederate reunion as the party left by train from the Atlanta Terminal station yesterday afternoon.

Georgia's veterans, most of them dressed in full C. S. A. uniform, joined South Carolina's delegation, which had already entrained, for the four-day reunion opening today in Jackson, Miss. The Georgia party included about a dozen veterans and several chaperones.

Acting as mascot for the Georgians will be Betty Anne Dawkins, 5, of the Confederate Soldiers' Home here. This will be the third reunion she has attended.

Five veterans in the Georgia party are from the Atlanta home. Oldest of these is J. H. Herb, 103. Chaperoning the Atlanta delegation is Dr. William Noble, physician at the home, and Mrs. Chloe Sharp, house nurse.

FLAGS, MUSIC SILENCE 'LAST ASSEMBLY' TALK

JACKSON, Miss., June 8.—(UP)—Flags and music and memories to-night silenced the "last convention" question as enfeebled fighting men of the Confederacy gathered for their 47th reunion.

Meeting simultaneously tomorrow will be the 42nd convention of Sons of Confederate Veterans, and the 38th convention of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association. But attention was centered on care and entertainment of the excited, 90-year-old "boys."

They will meet with veterans of Union armies at Gettysburg next year, but plans for a 1939 reunion have not been made.

Practically every one of the expected 200 veterans here must have the constant care of an attendant, committee men said. There were exceptions, of course.

General J. R. Seidler, of Nashville, commander of the handful remaining of Forrest's cavalry, ordered a "spirited" horse—not an automobile—to meet his train in the morning.

Other early arrivals are to include General Rene Lee, Nashville, adjutant-general, and General J. M. Claygood, St. Louis, Missouri, division commander, both mentioned as candidates for next commander-in-chief.

The United States Marine band will participate in the opening, with the stirring strains of "Dixie" to summon the Rebel yell.

Forty Confederate veterans and 25 widows from Texas to Virginia had registered tonight.

Longest Sun Eclipse in 1,238 Years Observed in Pacific 'Without Hitch'

Phenomenon Is Photographed 25,000 Feet Above Peru.

An airplane flight, 25,000 feet above the coastal plateau of Peru, to obtain the first complete photographic record of an eclipse of the sun from an airplane is described here by the plane's pilot, Captain Disher, is a veteran of five years' service on the regular Pan American-Grace Airways Cross-Andes route.

By CAPTAIN C. R. DISHER. Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

LIMA, Peru, June 8.—In a flight career of more than a decade, I have had many a wonderful experience—seen many a sight far beyond my powers of description. But the magnificent adventure those of us in the Pan American-Grace flying observatory had this afternoon while making a photographic record of the solar eclipse from a point five miles above the coastal plain of Peru undoubtedly tops them all.

I wrote yesterday of the elaborate preparations we had made and of the full "dress rehearsal" we carried out on Sunday. Today we had the splendid good fortune to far exceed yesterday's high expectations.

Aboard our Douglas airliner Santa Silvia as we lifted off Limatambo airport at 2:30 p. m. At 4:15 we were over Lima. E. W. Gray, Pan American-Grace copilot and radio operator; Major Albert W. Stevens, assigned to our observatory by the American Museum of Natural History, and J. W. Runcie, of Lima, known as one of the best photographers on the west coast of South America.

As I reported yesterday, the door and several windows have been removed from the plane to give unimpeded photographic action, and much of our early climb was spent by Major Stevens and Runcie in preparing for the severe cold they would experience.

14,000 Feet Up. Climbing steadily toward the northward, we reached 14,000 feet over Huarmey at 3:45.

By 4:15 we had reached the vicinity of Chimbote, which would be our general station during the eclipse, and were cruising at a height of 17,000 feet.

Suddenly, through the dark glasses each of us was wearing, a small nick appeared in the bottom of the red haze that now almost covered the entire sun's disk. At 4:20 the bite the moon seemed to be taking out of the sun grew very distinct, appearing at a point two or three degrees from the exact bottom.

We started climbing steadily to be at our determined altitude by the time of totality. Our engines were performing perfectly. As we passed 20,000 feet the temperature dropped to 10 degrees below zero centigrade.

At 4:45 we turned west and headed out to sea about 10 miles south of the Guanape Islands, where a fine low bank of clouds lay over the coast. By 5 p. m. we had reached our 20,000 feet. The temperature had dropped to 18 degrees below.

Not Big Enough. At 5:05 the impression struck us that, I am told, is common to all eclipse observers—that the moon would never be big enough to cover the entire sun's disk. At 5:18, however, it looked as though someone with a huge mouth had swallowed the sun entirely, save where the great and really awesome streamers of the corona made rainbow colored pictures around the dead black center of the moon's disk.

Suddenly, below us, the sun's shadow swept swiftly across a cloud bank behind us with the speed of an express train. Stevens and Runcie, after taking direct shots of the eclipse itself, had turned their cameras to be per-

HUGE STOCKYARDS STRIKE IS ENDED

30,000 Cattle Had Been Left Unattended When Workers Walked Out.

By the Associated Press.

Labor difficulties spread in the eastern half of the nation yesterday while the steel strike stalemate began its 14th day with no sign of compromise.

A strike of 300 stock handlers at the National Stockyards, East St. Louis, Ill., which paralyzed one of the largest livestock markets of the world, ended last night.

The strikers voted to accept a wage scale of 52 cents an hour and a one-year contract offered by officials of the stockyards company at a conference. They returned to work immediately, caring for the 30,000 hungry cattle on hand when the stockyards were closed this afternoon.

Strikes closed the Budd Wheel Company plant and two plants of the T. S. Manufacturing Company, at Detroit. More than 15,000 wage earners were involved.

Representatives of striking workers at the Timken Roller Bearing Company, Canton, Ohio, voted late yesterday to end the strike at Timken's plant and return to work under a temporary agreement providing for later adjustment of grievances. Approximately 7,200 have been idle.

Second "Labor Holiday." Lansing, Mich., experienced its second "labor holiday"—this time building crafts unionists who walked off their jobs as the signal for an intensive American Federation of Labor organizing campaign.

The "holiday" marked the excitement which attended Monday's demonstration by United Automobile Workers, affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Both sides in the steel strike appealed to federal bodies.

Chairman Philip Murray, of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, a CIO affiliate, asked a senate investigation of the acts of three strike-affected producers, Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, and Inland Steel Corporation.

Republic, meanwhile, reiterated its demand that the Postal Department handle foodstuffs marked for shipment into its plants operating behind picket lines, and threatened legal action if refusal continued.

Plan to Open Plant. Tension grew at Monroe, Mich., where reopening of a strike-closed Republic subsidiary plant was set for Thursday morning. Mayor Daniel H. Knaggs, who said a vote among workers showed 782 opposed to the walkout and 30 favoring it, asked for volunteers to augment the police force, and sought aid from Michigan's Governor Murphy.

Thirty-nine CIO members were sentenced to jail and fined for contempt of court at Waukegan, Ill., for defying a court order during last February's strike at the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation plant.

The eighth man died in Chicago from a bullet wound incurred in the Memorial Day riot near Republic's South Chicago plant. Strike leaders demanded Inland Steel Corporation meet them for negotiations on a contract, but Inland, operating principally at Chicago, again declined to consider a signed agreement.

An American Federation of Labor union won a close victory and the right to represent exclusively the more than 2,000 workers in the main plant of the far-flung H. J. Heinz Company in collective bargaining.

The Hayden Planetarium-Grace Eclipse Expedition watched the eclipse from the land of the sun-worshipping Incas in Peru while James Stokley, associate director of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and Dr. John Q. Stewart, of Princeton University, witnessed it from a steamship cruising in the Pacific near the location where the sun was blotted out for a maximum of 424 seconds.

The Hayden astronomers reported from a camp 12,000 feet above sea level that "we have achieved what we set out to do." The weather, they said, was "the most perfect any astronomer could have asked for."

As they broadcast a description of the eclipse, sun-worshipping Incas prayed in a churchyard where their children cried out in horror as the moon "swallowed" the sun for more than three minutes. Their shouts of joy as the sun came back could be heard over the radio.

CHARLES B. DONLE DIES. PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 8.—(P)—Charles Beecher Donle, 78, nationally known for nearly a half century as a children's evangelist for the Christian and Missionary Alliance, died at his home here tonight.

fectly set for this phenomenon, and, as it disappeared, yelled out in jubilation that they must have gotten perfect results.

At 5:45 we were over Mount Mongon and had begun our return toward Lima. As we cruised southward along the coast over broken and well scattered clouds, we made a more orderly check. Stevens, after a careful examination, reported all four of the cabin cameras had functioned without a hitch and that undoubtedly we would have a complete record of the progress of the sun's eclipse, then of the swift advance and recession of its shadow across the earth, the first ever taken from an airplane, and in Major Stevens' estimation, an invaluable contribution to science well worth any effort we had made to secure it.

At 7 p. m. we circled once more down onto Limatambo airport with the memory of an almost indescribable adventure still thrilling us to the tips of our fingers.

Crash Memories Cause Salesman To End His Life

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 8.—(P)—Edwin Patrick Walsh Jr., Hot Springs automobile salesman, died today in a hotel room today, leaving a note saying an accident involving a bus on which he was a passenger "caused me to take my life."

Walsh's body was found about 4 p. m. Coroner Roberts said the man had slashed his left wrist with a razor blade about noon. A letter addressed to his wife was found in the room.

The letter, part of which was made public by the deputy coroner after an inquest, said Walsh was a passenger on a Missouri Pacific bus which collided with a dairy truck on a bridge during a severe storm near Hot Springs Saturday night. Four persons were seriously injured in the accident.

The accident did not hurt me as much physically as mentally," the letter read. "Having been in bed two days as the doctor said, just ready for a nervous breakdown and then have to see all those people bleeding and screaming—well, I just can't stand it."

The accident caused me to take my life at this time."

POLA NEGRI RECOVERS; KNIFE IS UNNECESSARY

BERLIN, June 8.—(P)—Pola Negri, "vampire" star of Hollywood's silent movie era, was well on the way to recovery tonight after an appendicitis scare and an ambulance dash from Bayreuth to Berlin.

She had stopped at a Bayreuth hotel on her way to Switzerland. Feeling ill and fearing appendicitis, she consulted a Bayreuth physician and then decided to go to Berlin for treatment. She was rushed to a hospital here by ambulance.

Physicians said she was suffering from an infection of the digestive system but was responding well to treatment.

Gordon Eppley School Offers Dance Recital

The Gordon Eppley School of the Dance presented its 300 pupils in recital last night at the Erlanger theater before a large audience.

The youthful dancers gave ample evidence of careful training. The numbers were well presented and the costumes attractive.

The opening number featured the school's baby classes in a pleasing ballet number which highlighted the show. The individual tap and novelty dancing also drew the favor of the audience.

Outstanding numbers were the dance routines adapted from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance."

WALLACE OPPOSES 10 PER CENT BOOST IN FARM BENEFITS

Declares Increase Might Lead Persons To Believe
AAA Criticism Justified.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace announced opposition today to requests for a 10 per cent increase in federal farm benefit payments to southern farmers under the 1936 soil conservation program.

He made public a letter to Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, of the senate committee on agriculture, in which he said many requests for the increase indicated "an incomplete understanding of all facts involved."

Increasing payments, Wallace said, "might lead some people to suppose there was justification for recent criticism in the senate of the AAA conservation program."

This criticism, Wallace wrote, included "sensational statements... that farmers didn't earn the

Roosevelt's Home In Georgia Is Wet

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., June 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's "other home" county went both wet and New Deal in early returns from today's constitutional amendment and prohibition repeal election.

Voting for an amendment allowing Georgia to start old-age pensions in conformity with the plan Roosevelt inaugurated, one precinct gave a majority of 213 to 18.

On the wet-dry issue, two precincts gave 224 for and 130 against.

payments, that the payments constitute a racket, and that expenditures for them should be drastically curtailed.

The cabinet member said he favored return to the treasury of any funds remaining from the $470,000,000 provided by congress for farm benefits under the 1936 program "in view of our present fiscal situation."

THOMAS HOPES TO HALT WALLACE "PROPAGANDA"

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, said today that the senate agriculture committee "hoped to halt" the "deflationary propaganda of Secretary Wallace and other administration officials" by its current program of hearings.

"Some of the members," he said, "have been trying for 80 days to get farm leaders here to testify—not so much in the interest of new legislation as to counteract an official attitude that farm prices are high enough."

Thomas, advocate of cheaper money, made the statement after the executive committee of the powerful American Farm Bureau Federation had thrown its support to the Oklahoma bill to set up a federal monetary authority.

20-CENT COTTON PRICE FAVORED IN N. CAROLINA

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—Kerr Scott, North Carolina agriculture commissioner, told the senate agriculture committee today his state favored the domestic allotment cotton plan with a 20 cents price base.

Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, and George W. Norris, Independent, Nebraska, questioned the wisdom of establishing the 20-cent price, asking whether too great a burden would not be placed on the consumer.

Bankhead estimated that on basis of an 8,000,000-bale consumption the 20-cent would "levy $350,000,000 a year on the consumer." Norris asked Scott "where the money would come from."

does not intend to arrest persons on relief who are unable to work.

Describing the situation in Bibb county, he said:

"It's reached the point where farmers, brickyard operators, lumbermen and all other persons needing labor cannot get it because the laborers prefer to be on the relief rolls."

"Negroes are quitting the farms because they can move into the cities and get on the relief rolls and do nothing. I don't know what will happen when cotton picking time comes unless action is taken."

EMPLOYMENT DIRECTOR DENIES LABOR SHORTAGE

Commending co-operation by WPA authorities in the Macon area, Marion A. O'Connor, director of the Georgia State Employment Service, last night declared "there is no acute shortage in the Macon district where prevailing wages are offered to labor."

O'Connor's statement followed a declaration by Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., Bibb county, that his force would "sweep the county and arrest any person who refuses to accept employment." Hicks had said his campaign would be aimed at relieving the Bibb county labor problem and that he would "fill the jail if necessary."

"Perfect Co-operation"

"The re-employment office at Macon has had perfect co-operation from the Macon offices of WPA," said O'Connor. "In every case where we wanted labor for private employment, we had only to notify the WPA district office there and the required workers would be released immediately."

O'Connor added that three counties of the Macon district have no federal projects going at all, with all WPA labor released. These are Peach, Houston and Monroe. Twelve counties compose the district.

In a prepared statement Saturday, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator, declared less than 40 complaints of farm labor shortage had reached WPA offices in Georgia this year, which she said was considerably below last year's figure.

Officer Breaks Hand Felling Negro Suspect

A punch felled a negro who reared toward a pocket when officers sought to arrest him early last night at Bedford place and Linden street, and broke three bones in the right hand of Radio Patrolman J. M. Jones.

The officer was treated at Grady hospital. He and his partner, Radio Patrolman W. D. Nash went to the intersection after William Proctor, of 520 Magnolia street, called police headquarters, saying a negro pointed a pistol at him.

The negro, listed as Robert Shropshire, 24, of 551 Butler street, was charged with resisting arrest and pointing a weapon at another.

SIMPLE RITES MARK HARLOW'S FUNERAL

director of Miss Harlow, and Ray June, cameraman who filmed many of her great screen triumphs.

Services will be held at 9 a. m. The rites originally were scheduled for 11 a. m. but were changed because studio officials believed a smaller crowd would be attracted at the earlier hour.

Dressed in Pink

Miss Harlow was dressed in a simple pink organdie dress, with puffed sleeves and handpainted flower designs. Mrs. Bello ordered the last-minute change from a white gown, a color identified with the star during her film and public appearances. The pink dress, Mrs. Bello explained, was Jean's favorite for home wear, and one she never wore in public.

Movie fans, many in rough working clothes, were turned away from Pierce Brothers' mortuary today. In life, Miss Harlow often said she was opposed to elaborate funerals; in death, her wishes will be observed. For that reason her body will not lie in state as is the custom when motion picture actors die, nor will there be more than 200 of her friends present when the funeral is held in the tiny chapel of the Wee Kirk of the Heather in the memorial park.

Hollywood mourned Miss Harlow today as an untemperamental star in a city where temperance is the rule; as a willing worker, unimpressed by fame and financial success; as a loyal friend.

Powell in Seclusion

William Powell, with whom Miss Harlow was seen most often in public recently and who might have been her next husband, was in seclusion—too grief-stricken even to speak of his sorrow.

Mrs. Marino Bello, the actress' mother, was prostrated. For days she had watched ceaselessly at Miss Harlow's bedside and almost to the end she remained confident that her famous daughter would recover.

Miss Harlow, however, was fighting against uremic poisoning, a stubborn ailment that neither medical science nor her will to live could overcome.

At the mortuary, it was said that strict orders had been issued not to admit anyone.

"We have been given few final instructions yet," an attendant said. "All we know is that Miss Harlow will be dressed in white. The casket has been picked out. It is a nice one, but not overly expensive. We have received orders not to allow anyone to see Miss Harlow's body at present."

Two Transfusions Given

Today the details of the long fight to save Miss Harlow's life were made public. She entered the hospital Sunday under the care of Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh and Dr. S. Chapman. Two blood transfusions were given to her after she had been placed in an oxygen tent, and a fire department inhalator squad worked over her for the last two hours and sixteen minutes of her life.

"We did everything that years of training had taught us," said Fire Captain Warren H. Blake, "but it was a hopeless task. Miss Harlow was in a semi-conscious condition when we arrived. We set up four oxygen tanks and connected them with a mask over her face. Her mother was talking and shaking her lightly, trying to rouse her. Miss Harlow was talking incoherently. You could not understand her."

"I asked William Powell to say something in an effort to rouse her. Powell stepped up to the head of the bed and opened his lips to speak. But he choked up and couldn't say a word. He shook his head and stepped back."

Estate to Mother

The $1,000,000 estate probably will go to Mrs. Bello. Mendel Silberg, Miss Harlow's attorney, was quoted as saying that she took out "a tremendous policy" with Lloyd's of London two months ago.

Her estate was built up from a salary that touched $5,000 a week and from the large sum she inherited from her second husband, Paul Bern, who committed suicide within three months after she married him. Miss Harlow, unlike many stars, did not spend her money on luxurious living. She drove a small automobile to the studio. She sold her big mansion on Beverly Glen boulevard and moved with her mother into a small but comfortable house on Palm drive in Beverli Hills.

capacity of chancellor of the exchequer. This, however, will only be done after some adjustments are made in the tax schedules, in the belief of Sir Josiah.

"Business generally has objected to the excess profits tax," he said, "and Chamberlain will probably have to substitute some other revenue raising plan. Outside of a few expected adjustments such as this, however, the English people have accepted the new tax burden cheerfully, realizing it is necessary for the safety of the country and as a road to continued peace."

Sir Josiah told of some of the tremendous forward strides made by British railroads in the past 10 years.

"Astonishing" Improvement

"The new equipment and service we have installed would astonish a man who hasn't traveled on English roads since, say, 1925," he commented.

"We still have the two classes of accommodation, first and third class, but there is no difference in the compartments except that the individual passenger has more room first class. We have recently put in sleeping cars for third class."

Electrification of suburban branch lines is progressing rapidly, Sir Josiah said.

"We have learned just where electric trains are profitable and where they are not," he said. "They pay on the shorter runs where the population is dense enough to provide heavy traffic all day. On the through lines steam is still the best motive power."

Spread of the "Oxford Group" movement has gone about as far as it can in England, in the opinion of Sir Josiah.

"Novelty Fading"

"The movement," he said, "has permeated a large portion of British life, but it has about reached its limit now. The novelty appeal, which had much to do with its earlier acceptance, has worn off and any further adoption of the idea will have to come from those already in full sympathy."

Sir Josiah did not say whether he subscribed to the "Oxford Group" idea but did speak favorably of the movement.

As for world politics and prospects of war or peace in Europe—Sir Josiah was called to breakfast, the car began to move, and he declared he'd have to leave any such discussion for another visit.

TENURE EXTENSIONS VOTED 19 TEACHERS

School Board Approves
Every Recommendation
Made by Sutton.

Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls' High school, and 18 other veteran teachers and employees of the Atlanta public school system yesterday were voted extensions of service by the board of education.

The board also passed a rule barring reassignment of any teacher whose service has been found unsatisfactory in two schools without a majority vote of the board itself.

Under board rules, a teacher who reaches the age of 65 must retire unless a two-thirds vote of the board concurs in a recommendation of the superintendent that an extension be granted.

Every recommendation made yesterday by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, school superintendent, was approved unanimously.

Others included in the list follow:

Mrs. K. S. Brogan, Gussie Bremer, Nellie Dibble, Mrs. Julia Hardee, L. O. Kimbrey, Mrs. Mary McDonald, A. T. Peacock, Mrs. Martha Spencer, Ed L. Sutton and Little Wurn, white; and E. T. Landrum, negro, all in the instructional department, and W. M. Perryman, T. H. Willett, white; and J. C. Dees and Robert Taylor, negroes, of the operating department, and E. E. Allen and M. B. Rinton, of the maintenance department.

The following cadet teachers were added to the list to fill vacancies: Oscar Magnusson, D. M. Wells, white, and Rosebud Brown, Mamie Calhoun, Rachel Carter, Edell Clemmons, Julia Hill, Birdie Wallace and George Williams, negroes.

New teachers elected to take the place of teachers who have resigned follow: R. E. Hagen, Margaret Holst, Margaret Ridley, Lillian Thomas, Shirley C. Watkins, white, and Fred O. Dorsey, Daniel P. Goughly, Fred D. Miller and Elsie W. Murphy, negroes.

The following resignations were approved: Anne Lee Arnett, Mrs. Charlotte Walton, white, and Vivian Reid, E. W. Smith, F. H. Tharp and Gladys Williams, negroes.

Mrs. Edna Trussell was granted a leave of absence and the following extension of leaves already voted were approved: Mrs. Mary B. Ashell, Mrs. Mable S. Boyler, Mrs. Agnes R. Keith, Mrs. Sue M. Oliver, Mrs. O. E. Smith, Mrs. Chase Van Valkenburg, Mrs. Louise E. White.

Purchase of $2,194 worth of coal for the winter season was authorized by the board, as was establishment of a special school textbook committee with power to act in negotiating with state authorities in proposed sale of local books.

TRADE PACT SOUGHT

Anglo-American Treaty Still in Tentative Stage.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—State Department officials said today conversations with Great Britain looking toward possible negotiation of an Anglo-American reciprocal trade agreement still are in the most tentative and exploratory stage.

Discussions have not yet developed, they said, a workable basis for the conduct of negotiations.

The chief obstacle to be overcome, well-informed sources said, was an agreement by Great Britain to give tariff concessions to American agricultural products. Such a move would involve interests in certain of the British dominions which now supply Britain with most of its farm produce.

Death of Jean May Open Gate For Her 'Twin'

NEW YORK, June 8.—(UP)—Maureen Rio, 23-year-old dancer who looks as much like Jean Harlow as one person can look like another, said tonight, wiping away tears, that she believed the screen star's death would open the gates of Hollywood to her.

Maureen Rio, Jean Harlow and Death have been strangely linked. Miss Harlow and Maureen were friends, they corresponded and made personal appearances at the same theater. But every time the little dancer took a screen test, they looked at her ash-blond hair and her neat figure and said, "You're too much like Harlow."

Now the ash-blond hair is dyed red, but Miss Rio still looks and talks like Jean Harlow. She said she would let her hair return to its normal shade and then make another try at Hollywood.

Miss Harlow realized that the resemblance and the accident of fame were holding Maureen back from a career and once she tried to do something about it.

"Jean took me to see Flo Ziegfeld," Maureen said. "She told Mr. Ziegfeld I had a great future on the stage. He gave me a contract. A week later he died."

INSTALLMENT XVII.

Automatically she looked in the direction of the sound—right into a camera leveled at her. There was a sound like an explosion, a sputtering of light in her face, as the flashlight went off. The man who had called to her was running from the room. What a picture he had for the sensation papers! Duke had won the first round. That was something, but he did not delude himself into believing there were not others, and harder ones to win, ahead. He knew something about women as well as horses. Any woman could be on her mettle now and Carol! In the six months he had known her he had learned something of her will, of her determination. Grudgingly, at first, he had come to admire her. She wasn't, after all, just a beautiful girl, snobbish and silly. She had character. Jim Clayton had been right when he said that "underneath everything she is a fine person."

He, too, was on his mettle now. He had wanted Madison to bet with him from the first. He wanted the money. He needed it. He knew, given time, he would win. The bookmaker always did. It was the law of averages. But there was something else involved. Carol's attitude was a challenge. His pride as well as his pocketbook would not let him lose Madison.

"Time of the essence," he said to himself as their plane crossed the state line into California. "We got a head start, but she's halfway across the continent now, if I know Carol. And I do!"

He wasn't worrying about getting Madison out to Santa Anita. Yesterday's betting and winning had aroused the instinct, long dormant. There would be no conflict with him. But there was Carol to reckon with.

Madison found a stack of telegrams from New York waiting for him when he reached the hotel. He put in a number of long distant calls. He spoke to his Los Angeles representative and got in touch with Pruett, the oil magnate with whom he was to confer about the concessions. Duke heard it all. Madison had told him to "stick around" if he wouldn't be bored. He wasn't. He was interested in watching Madison, seeing what a shrewd business man he was. He was also a little awed by the huge sums which Madison mentioned in the off-hand manner. Carol had certainly been right when she said Madison did not deal with "chicken feed."

But Duke was not only fascinated by what he heard. He was worried. Madison seemed to have become just a big financier. He might become so absorbed in concessions and stocks and bonds that he wouldn't go to the races. So his heart almost skipped a beat when he heard Madison say:

"Of course, Mr. Pruett, we must go into that right away. It won't take much time and that's good. I'll be here some time and I'm going out to Santa Anita every day. Don't think I came all this way just to talk business."

Duke left the two men alone when Mr. Pruett arrived. He was to wait in the lobby for Madison to join him in an hour. As he turned from the newsstand where he had gone to get a paper, he gasped.

Coming through the entrance were Fritzie—Kiffie—Tip. So the plane was in!

Fritzie saw him first, ran to him and threw her arms around him. The two men shook his hand.

"Carol with you?" he asked. "For once we're free of that dame," said Tip. "You see she wasn't arrayed in just the right garments for travel. Gee, I'll bet she was blazing when she missed the plane."

"There'll be another one soon," said Duke, thinking he had only this one day when he could be sure of getting Madison to Santa Anita.

"What do you do with papers, ducky dear?" asked Fritzie. "Can't you see there's a terrible storm somewhere or other between here and Florida? We just got through."

"Fritzie, I love you," cried Duke. "And that goes for you men, too. I love the whole wide world and everybody and everything—especially storms—in it."

For the next four days Duke did not open the paper, as he always did by force of habit, to the sports page. It was weather news in which he was interested. If only that storm continued he was saved. Or so he thought. But things did not work out as he had planned.

The trouble was not that Madison lost interest in the races. With each visit to the tracks, he became more enthusiastic. It was that day after day he picked the winners.

It was all right for him to win the first day. Even a sucker, Duke knew, needed a "come-on" at the start. But Madison always won and never lost. Duke almost lost faith in the law of averages of which he was always talking.

"Cripes, Boss," groaned Tip at the end of the third day. "Just to think I used to belly-ache about that snooty Clayton dame and what she took. Seems like nothing now. Do you know you're out 80 grand on this fellow. And you thought him a sucker. Cripes!"

"I know," said Duke, "but—"

"Don't tell me his luck will turn. What's that line about to him that hath?—well we're giving him our shirts. Could we lose him before we're stark naked?"

"We cannot," said Duke. "We've got to get some of it back."

On the fourth day, Tip managed a smile, but it was a wry one.

"Sure, he lost $10,000 today—but there's a long way to go."

"We'll go it," said Duke firmly. "And stop being a cry-baby. He's throwing a big party tonight—just cast your eye around the Coconut Grove and see me sitting at a table with millionaires, socialites and movie stars."

"That guy should order diamond-studded platinum plates," muttered Tip.

As Duke sat at the ringside table which Madison had engaged for his party, that evening, he was gay and charming. Luck was coming his way and Carol had not appeared.

"Ladies and gentlemen," cried change in the seeming size of the sun at noon. What a different story it is on Mercury! At one time of its year, the sun would seem about five times as large as it does to us. At another season, only 22 days later, it would seem about 10 times as large as to us.

The changes in the seeming size of the sun, if seen from Mercury, are due to changes in distance. At a certain time, the planet is 28,500,000 miles from the sun. At another time, it is 43,400,000 miles from the sun.

The heat from the sun also differs a great deal. There is always too much on one side of Mercury, but sometimes there is about twice as much as at other times.

To make one complete trip around the sun takes Mercury 88 days of time, as we count time on earth. That gives us reason to say that Mercury's year lasts a little less than three months. A 12-year-old boy or girl of the earth would be more than 49 "years" old on Mercury.

Careful study of Mercury has failed to show air around it. If there is any air, it is so little that there would not be enough for us to breathe. That is another reason I would not care to go there.

Mercury has been called "the twilight planet." This name comes from the fact that it can be seen only in the early evening or around sunrise. Even then it is hard to find.

M'REYNOLDS PLAYS DICTATORSHIP IDEA

Justice Says 'History of Our Past Forbids One-Man Rule Here.'

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 8.—(P)—Citing the "one-man" governments of Italy and Germany, Associate Justice J. C. McReynolds of the U. S. supreme court asserted today that "somehow the history of our past" says such rule will not come to this country. "Can it come to us?" he asked in addressing several civic clubs. "Is it coming to us? Somehow the history of our past answers, 'no.' The jurist declared, however, that "a great Irish orator, you may recall, pronounced more than a century ago that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

"We are going through strange and changing times," he said. "There is a spirit of unrest circling the globe. There seems to be growing doubt of whether men are capable of self-government."

Italy "is held in one man's hand," while "a single man" dominates Germany, he said.

Justice McReynolds made only passing reference to the supreme court. The rest of his remarks related to personal experiences when he attended school and practiced law here.

WAR DEBTORS SEEK ARMS COST CREDITS

Claim Spending Is Necessary
Protection to American
Form of Government.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(P)—Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, told the senate today European debtor nations were prepared to argue that their armament expenditures should be credited as payments on their war debts to the United States.

He said their argument would be based on the theory that the armaments were actually a protection to the American democratic form of government.

The suggestion, he said, was to be advanced to the American government on behalf of the major debtor nations by Premier von Zeeland, of Belgium, on his forthcoming visit.

The debtor nations, he declared, would say "they are compelled to spend large sums in the matter of military preparation on the theory of a necessary self-defense against the invasion of such lands as would intrude the theory of dictatorship and tyranny in the place of democracy."

They would argue, therefore, he said, that "when such opposition is successful it inures to the benefit of the United States and whatever money the United States loses from the amount that might have been paid to its debts by these sums being applied to armament, such becomes an expenditure in behalf of the United States as completely as if it were directed by our government."

Atlanta Horse Show Devotees Leave for Greenville Show

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA'S faithful horse show attenders will be on hand for the brilliant opening of the Greenville, S. C., show this evening. The south's most aristocratic horse flesh, which includes several fine Atlanta mounts, will be shown at the performances scheduled for today and tomorrow. Mrs. Wilshire Riley, who will be accompanied to the South Carolina city by Miss Martha Brown Edmondson and Lupton Rainwater, will show her magnificent five-gaited and fine harness mare, Greenwood's Highland Flower.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ward will attend the show, the latter riding her five-gaited Junior mare, Melinda Peavine, which, by the way, was raised and trained by Mrs. Ward, who is considered one of the south's expert equestriennes. In the five-gaited class, Mrs. Pritchett Duncan will show handsome Crystal King, from the Tuxedo Hunt Club and owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black, who will attend the show with their daughter, Mrs. William Rorer, of Salt Lake City, and Mr. Duncan. No southern show is complete without Anne and Bill Egan, who have captured several blue ribbons in the spring shows with their three-gaited mares, Peavine's Miss Patsy and Bombo Belle, which are entered in the pair class. They will be accompanied to the Greenville show by their mother, Mrs. John Egan, who is as much of a horse show enthusiast as her young son and daughter. Black Venus, the much admired walk, trot mare owned by Dr. Lee Hopping, will be shown by Lee Hopping Jr., whose horsemanship is sure to evoke the admiration of the judges.

The Roxboro Riding Club will be represented at the Greenville show by several fine mounts, including Avalon, owned and ridden by T. Fenton Dye, who will also show his three-gaited gelding, No Wonder. Regatta is another walk, trot gelding entered from the Roxboro club in the Greenville show. Regatta will be ridden by the accomplished Jessie Nunnally, young daughter of Winship Nunnally, owner of this magnificent horse. Peavine's Playboy, five-gaited chesnut gelding owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lockwood, will compete for first honors in his class with Jimmy Martin in the saddle.

Atlanta's attending the show will share honors with other prominent visitors at the numerous social gayeties planned by Greenville's horse show officials in connection with this outstanding sports event.

WHEN pretty Jane Osburn enters this morning at Farmington, Conn., for Atlanta, little will she dream that here at home plans are under way for a surprise party for her on Friday afternoon. Mrs. L. J. Osburn, her mother, has her plans all made for the party, which will gather members of the Phi Pi Club, of which her daughter is a member. Jane has been at Miss Porter's fashionable school in Connecticut for the past year and with such frequent visits home such as Christmas and Easter she has been unable to attend the various social affairs which her sorority sisters enjoy from time to time. Georgia Adams, president of the Phi Pi Club, is working hand in hand with Mrs. Osburn to make the affair a complete surprise to the returning belle, and if present plans carry, the party will be rated as "tops."

By the way, very soon after Jane returns she will dash off again, perhaps to Sea Island Beach, where she will spend several weeks. Her parents have just returned from the coastal resort to be here to greet their daughter upon her arrival tomorrow.

HER most remarkable memory, which enables her to play Liszt's Concerto in E Flat, a very difficult composition of 62 pages, will be displayed by Laura Shallenberger this evening when she entertains at a musicale at her home on Westminster drive. Laura will present a well-rounded program of numbers from Liszt and other great composers, Schubert, Chopin and Bach, and she is able to give each one from memory.

The talented young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William F. Shallenberger is one of Atlanta's most gifted artists. She recently celebrated her 15th birthday and for seven of those years she has been presenting full musical programs. She presented a recital on Sunday for some of her older friends and this evening's affair will assemble 50 of the younger musicians of the city for a repetition of the program. Dr. and Mrs. Shallenberger will assist in entertaining at the informal reception which will follow the program.

Your Figure, Madam 'Gardening' With Needle

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

ACHING FEET MAKE CROWS- FEET.

Do you know, it may not be a new girdle you need to make your figure glamorous and fetching in your new spring frocks; it may be a new pair of shoes!

Fantastic? Not at all. Unhappy feet, balanced on teetering high heels or squeezed into the wrong last, throw your figure out of line, curve shoulders dolefully, flatten the chest and make the stomach protrude. Also, you tire quickly, and fatigue does shattering things to your figure.

Comfortable, scientifically designed shoes that distribute the weight of the body help to keep your figure erect and attractive and postpone fatigue.

You're thinking of ugly shoes now, and wondering how much glamor broad "common sense" shoes can give you. But today the makers of health shoes have learned how to sugar coat the pill. Their scientifically constructed, health-giving shoes are modishly styled. The look like Paris and feel like boudoir slippers.

When you have discovered the last that gives you the greatest comfort and keeps your foot tireless and vital, always select it, whatever style shoe you buy. You can obtain sports, dress or evening shoes in the same individual last, and your feet will be healthier and your posture better.

Badly fitted shoes cause fatigue posture.

If you're a business girl, you may or may not use your feet a great deal during the day. But if you're a housewife, you probably take thousands of steps a day just in the course of normal activity. Don't count them; it will scare you. But think of this: Thousands of steps taken in the wrong kind of shoes are bound to have harmful effects on your feet, your figure, your disposition, even your face.

Don't take those steps in soft slippers that give no support, or in an old broken-down pair of shoes with run-down heels. You may not realize what's causing it, but you'll find yourself tired all the time, with pains in the backs of your legs, an aching back, and tired lines in your face. You'll find the body readjusting itself to carrying its tired weight, and when those shoulders sag and that abdomen comes out—there goes your figure!

So let's look at your shoes. Are they snug in the heel, allowing no play? Are they roomy at the toes, with a half-inch between them and the end of the shoe for exercise while you walk? Does the arch of the shoe come where your arch is, and hold it firmly and supportingly? Are your shoes large enough? And does the last fit the shape of your foot?

You may still need a new girdle. But how about a new pair of shoes?

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

SAYBROOK, Conn., Monday.—Storms hung in the air last evening, finally the rain came, and everything looked delicious, green and cool afterwards.

I think, perhaps, the greatest luxury I know is sitting up reading in bed. Time after time I go to bed, firmly saying to myself, "I will not read more than 15 minutes," and then the house is so quiet, the light is good, one is so comfortable, the book proves much too interesting to put down, and 10:30 becomes 11:30 and 11:30 becomes 12:30, and when the book is finally finished, you either glance guiltily at the clock and try to forget what you see, or you say to yourself firmly: "As one grows older, one doesn't need so much sleep, so what is the use of wasting time that way?"

Last night I put in a short session because I was reading a manuscript for the Junior Literary Guild and was nearly through. I have strongly recommended that they accept it, but I don't know what the rest of the board will say.

It is a very exciting story of the San Francisco water front today, not 20 or 50 years ago, though some of the things that occur may appear to people in other parts of the country to smack of the middle ages.

I always feel when I am on the west coast that it ought to be so easy to get people together and to work out a practical solution of some of their difficulties. Apparently this is not as easy as it would seem. Between employers and employees there exists a bitterness which we rarely find in any other part of the country, except perhaps in some of our largest industrial fields, like the coal and steel areas.

I was up bright and early this morning, did a number of things, and at 11 o'clock Mrs. Scheider and I started for Westbrook, Conn. The roads in Connecticut are very lovely, there are so many trees and so much water, but they are not conducive to fast traveling because, evidently, no one has considered straightening them.

I rather prefer it myself when I am not in a hurry, though I always think of Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, the superintendent of public works for New York state, and his terrible logic when he once explained to me what a curve in the road cost in man-hours and in time.

We stopped by the side of the road and ate a sandwich and drank some milk, and we are now spending an hour or two with old friends of mine.

All day I have been thinking of Amelia Earhart somewhere over the Atlantic ocean and I hope she will make her flight safely. She is so utterly simple, which I suppose is an attribute of all great people. She never seems to think any of the things which are being quire any courage. The point of all these flights which are being made outside of the scientific studies which may affect the actual safety of flying, is to make people realize what can be done so they will take it all more casually. I will anxiously wait for the first radio reports.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TOO MUCH VITAMIN D? AW, RATS!

For a period of two years Dr. I. A. Manville, of the University of Oregon Medical school, made daily measurements of the amount of ultraviolet in sunlight in Portland. He found the daily average of ultraviolet irradiation for the first year was 3.36 units, and for the second year 6.2 units. The amount of ultraviolet that reaches the earth depends on the amount of rain, mist, fog, smoke (from forest fire or from industrial plants), cloud, dust in the air, and not merely on the total hours of sunshine. There were only 26 per cent more total hours of sunshine in Portland the second year of this test.

Between the hours of 10 a. m. and 1 p. m., the sunshine or even skyshine if there is no bright sun contains the most ultraviolet light, and so this is the time of day for the baby to bask in the sun, or for any one else who wishes to get the health-building or curative effect of a sunbath. Of course it is the time of day when sunburn is most likely to occur, too. Sunburn, even the first degree burn (mere reddening or slight inflammation or irritation of the skin without blistering) is uncomfortable and unpleasant, and a second degree burn (with blistering) can prove serious or dangerous, but there is always one consolation—it doesn't rob you of any benefit you have already derived from moderate exposure to sunlight.

In view of the fact that the noontime temperature in Oregon is mild during much of the year, and recalling that exposure of but little of the body to sunlight at intervals of several days has proved sufficient to prevent rickets in young animals, Dr. Manville suggests that proper utilization of the available ultraviolet of sunlight in the vicinity of Portland should prevent rickets in children.

However, Dr. C. Ulysses Moore, Portland child specialist, found physical defects from rickets in a large proportion of 1,000 children examined by himself and his associate, Dr. H. G. Dennis, particularly postural defects. These authorities concluded that it is good routine practice to supplement the diet of the infant or child with a suitable daily ration of vitamin D in order to favor perfect development.

The British Medical Research Council reports that extensive investigations of the problem show that control of tooth decay in children requires several times as much vitamin D as the amount usually considered necessary to prevent rickets in infants.

Just how much vitamin D may be necessary to prevent rickets in a baby, or how much may be necessary to prevent rapid decay of the teeth in childhood, or how much may be necessary to insure the most nearly perfect physical development in youth and early adolescence, nobody knows.

Some one in a laboratory experiment thought he observed fatal effects from large doses of vitamin D in rats. This questionable observation has been seized upon and broadcast by a "curmudgeon" who writes for the magazines. The idea seems to be to frighten people about vitamin D. Just for fun I have taken 10,000 units of vitamin D every morning for many months, and I'm still alive and kicking.

"I don't feel sorry for men. Trying to get a drunk wife in the house without the neighbors hearing her just shows 'em in what women had to put up with."

Hard work is the best antidote of pain in the heart and mind. While we grieve we can't be diverted with social pleasures but we can force ourselves to work and become absorbed in the job. My suggestion to you is to find a position that will take all you've got of energy and brain power. Plunge into it before you know it you will have got a grip on yourself.

In the meantime, take my word for it, you will be interested in the boys once again. So continue to make dates with your old friends, try to make new friends, keep up the play-acting and don't let the boys suspect you are carrying a heartache.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Your point of view, always interesting to me, is not in accord with mine on the subject of the perfect housekeeper. I am protesting the implication in your description of the perfect housekeeper type. If a woman "can't sleep unless everything in the home is in order," she will spend many sleepless nights. That is if she is in the position of many women I know, who are mothers of children, unable to hire help and constantly having to decide which shall be neglected, house or family. You see there's a limit to our time and strength. True, we are frequently embarrassed by the untidiness of our houses but we believe that it is more important to spend the time with husbands and children than to spend it on cleaning. Also I think the housekeeper type of wife is likely to make things uncomfortable for her family in her passion for order. Some of us mothers consider it more necessary to use our strength and our minds in studying our children and the current problems of the day. G. M. F.

Answer: I am in hearty agreement with you, lady, and if I have said anything to indicate that slavish devotion to a house is a woman's first duty, I am sorry. Every housewife owes it to her husband and children to give them good food and an orderly, comfortable place in which to live. But she is cheating them and will eventually cheat herself if she makes a fetish of housekeeping, expending all her energy and enthusiasm on shining brass and silver, polishing floors and dusting furniture. To begin with, her brain will atrophy if she doesn't exercise it beyond this point, and to end with, the whole family will regard her as a dull drudge and a bore.

My aesthetic sensibilities have been quite overwhelmed recently by the use of a soap which Americans shopping in London have for many generations found irresistible. The line is now available here, in summer floral odors of wild rose, English violet, jasmine, pink lilac, gardenia, rose geranium, June roses, and French fern—the latter an outdoor, woody fragrance suitable for men.

Responsibility for the lingering, delicate odor, so I'm told, lies in the fact that perfume of fine quality—made directly from the essential oils of flowers—is added in the process of manufacture. Down to the tiniest silver, the soap retains its fragrance, and the lovely clear and modern tint, blue.

Dear Miss Chatfield: A year ago I began to date a boy about once a month. He was so attractive, had such good manners, that I fell for him right away. Thank goodness, I didn't let the cat out of the bag for it wasn't long before he told me that he was engaged and was to be married soon. After his honeymoon he brought his bride to live in my town and the sight of her tore my heart to shreds. When I see them I get all upset and can't bear what other people are saying because my blood pounds in my ears. The other boys don't interest me and I can't get my mind on entertaining a date. I've been thinking that it might be a good idea for me to go away from home where I won't be tormented as I am here. What do you think of the plan?

G. S.

Answer: Poor child, a trip will be good for you, if you have somewhere to go and something to do when you get there. Just to strike out alone with no objective wouldn't help you much. It is pretty generally true that we can't get away from a heartache by traveling; for the pain goes with us. If we have the courage to stand still and fight it out on the home ground we are better off in the end. Particularly is this true if we have to leave our family and friends, our familiar surroundings and land lonely and unhappy in the midst of strangers.

Hard work is the best antidote of pain in the heart and mind. While we grieve we can't be diverted with social pleasures but we can force ourselves to work and become absorbed in the job. # Chisox Beat Yankees, 5-4, for Straight; Tie for Lead

ELDEN AUKER HOLDS MACKS TO ONE SAFETY

Indians Blow Six-Run Lead, Lose Chance for Top Place.

CHICAGO, June 8.—(P)—With Lefty Thornton Lee scoring his third victory over the New York Yankees this season, by a score of 5 to 4, the White Sox today ran their winning streak to 10 straight games.

As the Indians lost to the Red Sox, the Sox triumph put them in a first-place tie with the world champions, who have led the American league since May 24. They are a full game ahead of Cleveland.

Lee, who was touched for nine hits, had most of his trouble with Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig who accounted for all the Yankee runs. DiMaggio hit his ninth home run of the year and fourth in four days in the fourth inning.

Zeke Bonura and Luke Appling singled, Minter Hayes sacrificed, Tony Piet walked and Luke Sewell doubled for two runs and Broaca's exit in the fourth. Murphy came in and Lee's long fly brought home Piet, but that was the end of the Sox scoring.

ONE-HIT GAME. DETROIT, June 8.—(P)—Elden Auker, veteran Detroit right-hander, blanked the Philadelphia Athletics with one hit today, missing a perfect performance only because of Bob Johnson's solid smash for two bases against the scoreless pitcher in the fourth inning.

The score was 6 to 0. Auker struck out two batters and walked four. Gaining control as the game progressed, the "submarine ball" hurler retired in succession the last twelve A's to face him.

Johnson and Lamar Newcomer, who walked in the third and was sacrificed, were the only players to reach second base. Hank Greenberg, Detroit first baseman, led a 10-hit attack on Harry Kelley, Philadelphia pitcher, with his 15th home run of the season, a drive over the left field fence in the fifth, a double and a single in four times at bat. Pete Fox, center fielder, hit for the circuit in the sixth inning to score the final Detroit run.

NINTH INNING RALLY. CLEVELAND, June 8.—(P)—The Boston Red Sox landed on three Cleveland pitchers for seven hits and eight runs in the ninth inning today to win 10 to 8, what appeared an inning earlier to be a hopelessly lost game.

The Indians were leading, 8 to 2, going into the ninth. Dorr came up first for the Red Sox and was walked by Johnny Allen who seemed to be headed for his third straight victory.

Three successive singles followed the walk and Heving went in to pitch for the Indians just in time to be credited with the defeat. He allowed three runs and was replaced by Wyatt, who gave up three more.

The defeat put the Indians one game behind New York and Chicago, deadlocked in first place.

Yankee Again Beats Rainbow in Trials

ABOARD COAST GUARD CUTTER, OFF NEWPORT, R. I., June 8.—(P)—Gerard Lambert's Yankee today again demonstrated its superiority over Chandler Hovey's Rainbow, defeating the successful 1934 cup defender by two minutes over a 24-mile triangular course.

PIRATES BEAT PHILLIES, 8 TO 1; REDS NIP BEES

Grissom Holds Boston to Four Hits for 4-0 Shutout.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—(P)—Landing on four Philadelphia pitchers for 13 hits, including three home runs, the Pittsburgh Pirates today snapped a five-game losing streak in routing the Phils, 8 to 1. The triumph was the first of the year for young Russell Bauers, who let the losers down with six hits. Jensen, Brubaker and Todd hit the Pittsburgh homers.

BOSTON, June 8.—(P)—Lee Grissom, Cincinnati southpaw, held the Bees to four hits today when the Reds opened their Boston series with a 4-0 shutout. The visitors scored all of their runs against Lou Fette, the Bees' star freshman, who was forced to retire with none out in the third.

Dizzy, Hubbell

May Meet Today.

NEW YORK, June 8.—(P)—Rained out today, the league-leading New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals will play a double-header at the Polo Grounds tomorrow, with Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean likely to hook up in the opener.

It will be their first meeting since the memorable afternoon in St. Louis on May 19 when "Hub" turned back the Cards, 4-1, for the 22d in his string of 24 consecutive National league victories, and Dean's "dusting off" of the Giants precipitated a free-for-all fight. It also will be Dean's second start since his suspension by League President Ford Frick that occasioned the famous Dean bait cry of "I ain't gonna sign nothin'." The game will mark Hubbell's third appearance since the Dodgers broke his streak on May 31. Since then he has been knocked out of the box once and worked once in a relief role.

CRACKERS

YOLG GET ONE

The Vols scored their first run in the fourth. With two men out, they secured four successive singles to score one run. There were singles by Alexander, Jolley and Leggett, with Alexander scoring. Rodda beat out an infield hit. McDaniels followed with a single. McDaniels bounced out, Chatham to Hooks, to end the rally.

This must have scared the Crackers because they went out in their half of the inning and scored three more to give Trexler an 11-run lead.

Hooks beat out an infield hit. Afores grounded to Alexander. Mailho bunted a single to short and Hooks scored and Mailho went to third when McDaniels threw the ball away at first. Richards popped to Rodda. Chatham walked and the double steal followed. Bunting taking second base. Chatham scored. Parker ranned a triple to right, scoring Chatham. Luby bunted and was out. C. Chapman to Alexander.

The Crackers scored their 13th run in the fifth. Hill got his third single of the game. And after Hooks flied to C. Chapman, Rose slammed a double to right, sending Hill across. Mailho popped to Rodda and Richards filed to Hoffert.

PARKER DOUBLES. And they kept right at Eiland in the sixth, scoring one more. Parker doubled and went to third when Trexler was safe on McDaniels' wild throw at first. Parker scored on Luby's fielder's choice.

Richards' home run accounted for the 15th run in the seventh. There were two men out and nobody on base. Responded the homer inside the park with the bases loaded saved the Vols from complete disgrace in the eighth. With two away, Chatham's error gave Alexander life at first. Jolley and Leggett walked. Then Respond, who had replaced Rodda at second, hit a homer over Parker's head in center.

The Crackers made up for that by scoring their final three in the eighth. Parker got his fourth hit and Trexler fanned. Luby grounded out, McDaniels to Alexander. Then Hill singled for the fifth time, scoring Parker, and Hooks got his fourth hit, a double, scoring Hill. Mailho also doubled, driving Hill across. The 20-hit assault of Johnson and Eiland. It was, of course, mostly at Johnson's expense, although Johnson was the losing pitcher.

Crackers Send West to Elmira. Dealing with Rudy Hulswit, Brooklyn scout, the Crackers yesterday made arrangements to send Ralph West, rookie pitcher of Roanoke, Ga., to the Elmira club of the New York-Penn league.

Elmira is a Brooklyn farm. West, who was regarded as one of the brighter cracker rookies, possibly will be helped with a change of scenery.

WAR ADMIRAL AND POMPOON MISS LATONIA

Reaping Reward, Flying Scot and Heffly Top Saturday Race.

COVINGTON, Ky., June 8.—(P)—A field of fifteen, including the Kentucky Derby show horse, Reaping Reward, was indicated today for the $15,000 added Latonia Derby.

Four "also rans" from the Kentucky classic will go to the post Saturday for the 55th running of the Latonia feature race for three-year-olds.

War Admiral and Pompoon, win and place horses at the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, were among the 51 nominated on May 10 but neither will start. The injury to War Admiral in the Belmont last Saturday prevented Sam Riddle's colt from trying for the $5,000 premium offered at Latonia if the winner of its derby also won the Kentucky Derby.

Secretary Will Shelley received word today that the Milky Way Farm's entry of Reaping Reward and Military would arrive from Chicago tomorrow along with Mrs. Furst's Over the Top, a former stable companion of War Admiral, the Valinda Farm's Eagle Pass, and Raoul Walsh's Sunset Trail.

The lone starter from the eastern sector, John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, also is due Wednesday. Whitney has engaged Johnny Gilbert, one of the leading riders in the east, to ride Flying Scot, winner of the Withers stake at Belmont a couple of weeks ago.

Tech Grid Stars Face Hard Summer Labors

Most of Players To Work and Keep in Condition for Fall Grind.

By JACK TROY. Georgia Tech football players are looking forward to a summer of profitable employment, profitable physically as well as financially.

Fletcher Sims, ace quarter, will, for instance, "lug the leather" this summer for a tannery company in Chattanooga.

This job may well prepare Fletcher to help the Techs beat the hides off opponents next fall.

All the Jackets are lined up for jobs that are calculated to keep down excess weight and have them ready to begin practice in fairly good shape.

JONES TO POWER COMPANY. Ed Jones, end, is going to work with the power company at Tallulah Falls. And he expects to have additional power at one of the flanks.

Jack Chivington, who did a great job at center against California and Harry Appleby, the lightweight powerhouse at fullback, will be employed by a textile mill in Chattanooga.

Dutch (Ole Koon) Konekman, who says he never felt better in his life, will work for an oil company in Columbia, S. C. Tech fans are looking for the Flying Dutchman to have his greatest year on the gridiron next fall. Infected tonsils robbed him of top effectiveness last season.

NIXON IN NAVY. Jack Nixon, scrappy guard, will have a hitch with his old love, the navy. Nixon will go on a cruise this summer. He was in the navy before he entered Tech.

Bill Jordan and Jim Morgan, ends, are going to spend their summer in an army camp. Uncle Sam will keep them busy, no doubt.

Glenn Cushing, the fur-bearing tackle whom Coach Mack Tharpe expects to develop into the south's outstanding tackle next fall, will work as a mechanic in the Rhodes-Haverty building.

Ed Sims, reserve center, and Walter Rimmer, either a tackle or guard, will steel themselves for a new season by a summer at work at Atlantic Steel.

EDWARDS IN DOUBT. There is some question about Scraggy Edwards, it seems. The fast-flying midget was married not so long ago and it is not definite that he will return to school.

Some of the more promising sophomores, including Page, a back, and Wood, a tackle, will work in a cotton mill at Raleigh, N. C.

Ector, a back, has a job in a textile mill at West Point, while Lackey, a tackle, who is anything but mental as the name would indicate, is lined up for production work with his brother, Tarzan.

Many of the above-named Jackets did not take part in spring practice. They played either basketball, baseball or ran on the track team.

Hence, following a summer of work, they are expected to be ready to go back.

TOMMY LEACH WATCHES GAME. Continued From First Sports Page. Cobb was a great player. But I didn't see him much since he was in another league, the American.

And I was in the National. "But I just don't think he was better than Honus. I saw Honus enough to make up my mind to that."

"Have you been in any more controversies?"

"Well, I was down in Louisiana. And a fellow asked me which was the better infielder, Lajoie or Gehrig. And I told him I hadn't seen Gehrig play much but I'd seen Lajoie play plenty. And so I told him to look at the records. He did and he came back and said it was Lajoie that had the best record."

"What then?"

"Well, I told him it must be Lajoie. Because he certainly didn't think Gehrig was a better fielder than Lajoie because if he was they'd have Gehrig giving exhibitions instead of playing baseball."

Rudy Hulswit, scout for the Brooklyn's, is here with Leach. I couldn't find him in the crowd.

COACH AT RICE. HOUSTON, June 8.—(P)—Bill Eallace, No. 1 on Rice Institute's list of gridiron heroes, will return to his alma mater as assistant coach. Dr. Gaylord Johnson, business manager of athletics, announced today.

BREAK O' DAY

... Her movie roles didn't help her out with the gossips, who never seem to remember that—"There is so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us, that it hardly behooves any of us to talk about the rest of us." ... We fell to talking of John Drew in "Pendennis," Mrs. Fiske in "The Rivals," Cyril Maude in "Grumpy," and Maud Adams in "Peter Pan," and a lot of others. ... And wondered if their magic would be magic to the movie-goers of today. ... And what Ziegfeld would have done, had he lived, to match the musicals the movies stage.

A WAR VETERAN living near the ball park on Ponce de Leon calls the park every time the wind or accident does things to the American flag on the pole in center field. ... He never fails to note if it isn't pulled to the peak of the halyards. ... The other day it had slipped down and he wanted to know if the flag was at half-mast because of the ball club's defeat that day. ... Yesterday he almost had them in fits because the halyards were stuck and a flagpole man had to be called out to fix things. ... He called often until it was repaired. ... Earl Mann would like to buy your best pitcher. ... Dutch Leonard expects to be pitching in three more weeks. ... Businessmen wondering what's wrong with the Crackers might ask themselves what would happen to their sales staff if it lost its best salesman and there was no one to replace him. ... That's what happened to the Cracker pitching staff.

REV. ELIAS WOOD DIES AT RESIDENCE

Retired Methodist Minister Was 86 Years Old; Funeral Today.

The Rev. Elias Hinton Wood, retired Methodist minister and a leading figure in the Methodist church for more than 60 years, died yesterday morning at his home, 22 Springdale drive. He was 86 years old.

Mr. Wood was born in Atlanta and attended public schools in Fulton county and McDonough, Ga. He was received on trial in the Methodist ministry in 1875 at the North Georgia annual conference at Griffin, which was the same conference in which Bishop Warren A. Candler entered into the ministry.

He was ordained a deacon in 1877 and became an elder in 1879. He was superannuated in 1910 after serving various churches in the state for 35 years. Among the churches he served were Woodbury, Fayetteville, Acworth, Franklin, Sparta and Milledgeville and Mount Vernon church, near Atlanta.

After retiring in 1910, he again entered the ministry in 1925 as supply pastor of the Peachtree Road Methodist church, which was organized that year. Mr. Wood was one of the leaders in organizing the church and served as supply pastor until the next meeting of the conference. He was known as the "father" of the church and maintained an active interest in the church's affairs the remainder of his life.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Misses Leona and Ruth Wood, both of Atlanta; and five sons, Herman W. Wood, of Hephzibah, Ga.; Guy H. and Samuel P. Wood, both of Atlanta; Roy A. Wood, of McKeesport, Pa.; and Jesse E. Wood, of Hapeville.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Peachtree Road Methodist church, with the Revs. A. Lee Hale, W. H. Clark and F. F. Hudson officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Millions Made in Big Bull Market After Dissolution of Standard Oil

Gigantic Corporation Split Into 34 Separate Companies at Direction of United States Supreme Court; Orgy of Speculation Ensues.

This is the 14th chapter in a series of 20 daily installments which are an authentic chronicle of Mr. Rockefeller's life and career.

By JOHN K. WINKLER.

How could John D. Rockefeller, without destroying his life work, dissolve his enormous monopoly into its original units as ordered by the United States supreme court?

This was the question on the world's tongue in the spring and early summer of 1911.

No answer came from 26 Broadway. In that tower of silence the Standard Oil managers and their lawyers met daily, consulted by telephone or wire with their "retired" master, and wrestled with their problem.

On the last day of July, a brief statement was issued. The management had decided, the statement read, that the decree of the supreme court demanded that the Standard Oil be divided into 34 separate companies—the main New Jersey company and 33 others. Stockholders of record on New Jersey Standard's books as of September 1, 1911, would each be given their fractions of shares in the subsidiaries. Distribution would be made on or about December 1. That was all.

Stockholders in Daze.

Small stockholders were in a daze. "What fractions shall we receive?" they asked. "How will the stock of the subsidiaries be divided?"

New Jersey Standard, the sole holding company, had a curious issue of stock; the 983,383 shares carried a total book value of $99,338,300. It was felt certain the stock would be increased to some even figure, if for no other reason than to secure an evenly divisible fraction.

These suggestions were sternly suppressed by the principal owner, John Rockefeller. There must be no inflation of his company. More recent trusts had pumped hundreds of millions of wind and water into their stocks and exchanged it for the public's money.

But John D. had created Standard Oil out of his first fateful earnings. He still looked upon it, not as the public's money or property but as his money and his property.

Received New Stock.

On December 1 came the deluge. Each stockholder received his tiny nine hundred and eighty-three thousand, three hundred and eighty-three shares of stock in companies, some of which he had never even heard of.

Many stockholders sought to sell their holdings. Buyers were scarce—mostly stock exchange firms specializing in Standard Oil "splinters" (as they were called) and piecing them together into entire shares of stock.

This was the situation on December 26, 1911. On that day there was great activity at 26 Broadway. The offices of various companies shifted around. Some

WAR ON SYPHILIS PUT UP TO PUBLIC

Surgeon-General Declares Disease May Be Driven Entirely From U. S.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 8.—(P)—Several leading physicians said today that a pain in the neck, a kink in a big toe or mental bewilderment may be a sign of syphilis.

In a special symposium on the disease before the American Medical Association the group, headed by Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States public health service, brought together for the first time the newest information on the spread of syphilis and the war under way to check it.

Disorders Common.

Dr. A. Benson Cannon of New York city declared he had found that a large number of patients found to have syphilis complained they had one or several of the common ailments, such as intestinal disorders, colds, nervous disorders, anemia, arthritis, asthma, diabetes, hernia and goiter.

In addition, he added, the early stage of syphilis, which attacks the central nervous system may be ignored because a person only seems awkward, stupid or temperamental. No case of illness should be treated, Dr. Cannon declared, until a Wasserman test for syphilis has been performed.

Dr. Parran agreed fully and added that syphilis can be eliminated entirely from the United States, he added, if the public and every individual will back the program to test every one and administer prompt treatment carried to completion on every victim of the disease.

Dr. James E. Paulin, of Atlanta, Ga., discussed the effects of syphilis on the heart in considerable detail and Dr. H. N. Cole, of Cleveland, Ohio, declared that in the near future all expectant mothers must be tested for syphilis and the disease treated immediately in order to prevent children contracting it before birth.

Woman Finds Sister Long Believed Dead

ATLANTA, Ga., June 8.—(P)—Mrs. Lucy Richards, 72-year-old Athenian, learned last week her 93-year-old sister, whom she believed dead for more than thirty years, was alive and healthy at the home of a son in Prairie Dale, Texas.

Mrs. Richards had not heard from her sister, Mrs. Bob Hodges, since a couple of years after the latter left her home in Madison county to live in Texas years ago.

Last week Mrs. Hodges' son, John, 60-year-old Texas rancher, came through Atlanta and soon learned his aunt was alive. He was on his way to Florida and spent several days visiting here before continuing his trip.

Doctor Explains Why Girls Faint During Nuptials

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 8.—(P)—June brides who faint at the altar and coy young ladies who faint at a proposal of marriage, Dr. Henry Smith, of Rochester, Minn., said today, suffer from pressure of the "love artery" in the neck when they shyly turn their heads.

Fainting may result from other causes, he explained, but a large number of persons lose consciousness quickly from this pressure.

The "love artery" is the carotid artery which extends upward on each side of the neck to carry blood to the brain. At one point just under the jawbone is developed a bulge in which are located a mass of tiny nerves which regulate the blood pressure in the brain and aid in controlling the beating of the heart.

Turning of the head, stooping or looking upward, and tight collars produce the pressure on this bulge necessary to make a person faint, Dr. Smith declared, and in many cases it will cause the heart to stop completely for as long as ten seconds.

Most of these persons, particularly the brides, have no idea what is wrong with them, the Rochester physician said, and have no recollection of what happened to them when they recover consciousness. Fractures of the hands and arms and head injuries frequently occur when the artery suddenly goes into action and the individual keels over limply in a dead faint.
